Northeastern Hereford Breeders Hold Field Day

WARWICK, N.Y. — Iron Forge Farms was blessed with bright sunshine and low humidity as it hosted the Northeastern Hereford Breeders Field day earlier this month

The day was filled with information on the cattle industry. The many guest speakers presented a variety of topics that ranged from examining the Hereford breed from the '50s to the '90s, to demonstrations of the advanced technologies of ultrasound and embryo transfer

Emcee Dale Stith led off the program with a challenge to all breeders to get together as one group in the Northeast and serve notice that there are cattle east of the Mississippi River

Craig Huffhines, chairman of the American Hereford Association, followed with his comments on the strategy and direction of the breed and the roles both the breeder and national association play in that alliance He pointed out the fact that northeastern breeders need to work together as a region to create a greater benefit for the breeders in this part of the country

This was followed by a presentation of the breed from the '50s, '70s and '90s by Dr Tom Field of Colorado State University His research on cattle from each of the above generations has been conducted by actually growing cattle with semen from each of the genera-

Students Explore Agriculture Science Opportunities At Tulpehocken

CHRISTINE WILLIAMS
Instructor

BERNVILLE (Berks Co) — A host of opportunities were explored by students participating in SAE (Supervised Agriculture Experience) Orientations scheduled in July and August.

Students enrolled in the Agriculture Biology course in the Tulpehocken School District are encouraged to choose and participate in one of the dates offered. The students are incoming ninth graders enrolled in the science/agriculture course desiring an SAE credit and the opportunity it provides

The goal of the activity is to initiate or build on a student's interest by exposing them to varied research-related practicums Research practicums become part of the individual student's projects throughout the school year. Learning to develop a career relationship is an important component of the project

On the day's agenda appeared four topics including animal science, food science, plant science and environment-

At Last, Tobacco Growers May Have A Market

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

Four to five million pounds of worries.

Those "worries" are the amount of pounds of tobacco that haven't been sold in Lancaster County. Fortunately for most growers, the tobacco waits, dry and "heat" free, and can remain that way for some time to come.

For those who stripped the tobacco wet, the material is breaking down.

However, those worries could soon be a thing of the past as a new tobacco grower marketing organization, similar to a milk cooperative, comes into being.

Called the Pennsylvania Tobacco Grower Marketing Organization, the idea for the organization was spearheaded by a Lancaster County tobacco grower and president of the Lancaster County Farm Bureau.

CATTLE: Compared to Tuesday, slaughter steer sales were weak. Trading was very spotty and any strength posted at mid-week was erased. Demand was mostly moderate as buyers were apprehensive to start the bidding. Slaughter heifers were not well tested. Slaughter cow prices were .50-1.00 lower and weighing conditions were definitely in favor of the seller. Slaughter bulls sold mostly steady. Supply included 44 percent slaughter steers and 35 percent slaughter cows.

USDA-MO Dept Ag Market News

DAILY NATIONAL GRAIN SUMMARY

Sounds like a broken record but grain and soybean bids fell moder- ately lower today. Wheat 2 to 4 cents lower. Corn 4 to 9 cents lower. Sorghum 8 to 9 cents lower. Soybeans 1 to 10 cents lower. Wheat continued lower on harvest progress and good spring wheat yields are reported good. Favorable harvest weather up North, weighed on bids. Another fairly busy day for export sales with South Korea a big buyer. Corn and soybean bids moved sharply lower in reaction to very good crop conditions and beneficial growing weather. Some rain is forecast for the Midwest and Corn Belt areas but this would only benefit growth. Corn export demand has been good over the past couple of days, limiting declines.

The OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC THIS WEEK WITH

AUG. 31-SEPT. 6, 1998

FULL BARLEY MOON, SEPT. 6.

SCHOOL DAYS . . .

I know the answer! The answer lies within the heart of all mankind! The answer is twelve? I think I'm in the wrong building." Charles Schulz wrote this line for one of his famous "Peanuts" cartoons, and thousands of students, young and old, recalled those wonderful, awful, anxious moments before a teacher's gaze. Another modern-day humorist, of Dale Cards, recently added to Charles Dickens's lines, "It was the best of times. It was the worst of times . . ." by following it with, "It was school." Recognizing what a roller coaster ride these years can be, take time this year to get involved in your schools and help make a difference.

You learn the most from people who are themselves learning.

TIP OF THE WEEK

☞ Chamomile tea is a gentle stress-reliever, safe even for young children.

CHICKEN & CHUTNEY SANDWICH

2 slices sourdough bread
1/2 tablespoon mayonnaise
1/2 cup homemade chicken salad
1 tablespoon chutney (Major Grey's or other)
2 slices tomato (optional)
3 to 4 romaine lettuce leaves, trimmed

Spread both slices of the bread with the mayonnaise, then layer on the chicken salad, chutney, tomato slices (if desired), and lettuce leaves. Cut in half and serve, or wrap for lunch boxes.

Makes 1 sandwich.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

Rain in September is good for the farmer but poison to the vine growers.

Is the autumn warm, bright, and clear? We may expect a fertile year.

As September, so the coming March.

Special Offer

Handy chart full of interesting weather proverbs. Send $3 to Weather Chart, Dept. UF, The Old Farmer's Almanac, P.O. Box 520, Dublin, NH 03444

OPINION

Make Sure An Accident Doesn't Happen To You

We are into the harvesting season on the farm and often farmers push themselves to get the crops in the barn before the weather breaks. This is good farm management, but it also puts a stress on the operator to take timesaving shortcuts that may just be the ticket to a serious injury or even death.

Agriculture is the second most hazardous industry in the United States, with a death rate of 21 per 100,000 workers, compared to mining with 25 per 100,000. The National Safety Council estimates that in 1996 alone, 710 people died and 150,000 were permanently disabled by injuries sustained on farms and ranches in the United States.

According to Tom Bean, Ohio State University Extension safety leader, you can help your safety situation by replacing any missing guards and shields on equipment, conducting a general farm cleanup to avoid accidents, store hazardous pesticides in a proper location, repair any broken steps or flooring to prevent falls, and check and replace fire extinguishers for buildings or equipment and locate these extinguishers where they may be needed.

Other areas of concern include silo gas, grain bin safety, sun and heat exposure, and safety for children. In addition, farmers move equipment from farm to farm. Farm traffic on roads and highways causes accidents too. Think about getting your lighting and marking upgraded on farm equipment and tractors before you take to the road. Remember, almost all farm accidents could have been prevented with a little common sense applied in time. Make sure an accident doesn't happen to you or your family.

Now Is The Time

By John Schwartz

Lancaster County Agricultural Agent

To Plan Corn Harvest

Corn has passed the silking stage in many fields, according to Robert Anderson, Lancaster County Extension Agronomy Agent This year silking was slightly behind normal in many fields but should not cause any problems. However, some fields which are or have just silked may run out of summer before reaching maturity

Under normal summer growing conditions, corn requires approximately 64 days from silking to reach maturity The corn kernel goes through various developmental stages from silking through maturity or black layer formation

At black layer formation, the corn plant has reached its full potential and only requires heat to dry down the kernel Thus, corn silking later than the first week of August may not reach maturity before frost occurs Fields which will reach maturity late may best be used as silage

To Understand New Plant Genetics

One day the use of pesticides to protect crops from insects and diseases may be a story we tell our grandchildren Robert Anderson, Lancaster County Extension Agronomy Agent, reports plant breeding through genetically engineered plants are bringing agriculture closer to the elimination of pesticides

Plants are being genetically altered so that they are naturally resistant to certain insects and diseases. This results in a cost effective and environmentally friendly way to produce food and fiber without the use of pesticides.

Corn and soybeans were among the first crops to be genetically altered. Recently, it was announced a transgentic potato will soon be on the market. This potato is resistant to insects, particularly the Colorado potato beetle.

To Follow Safety Rules

Jeff Stoltzfus, Eastern Lancaster County School District Adult Farmer Program offered several fall harvesting safety tips every farmer should follow.

PTO shafts spin at 9 or 16 times per second at full speed. Once it catches your clothing, you do not have a chance. Make sure all shields are in place. Do not step over a rotating PTO shaft. Keep all children away from silo and machinery. There are plenty of less dangerous opportunities to teach children about the values of work.

This month a mother was driving a tractor when her 5 year old son fell off and was run over He survived with a broken pelvis and is expected to fully recover His mother has nightmares and has not had a full night's sleep since the accident.

Children under 10 do not belong on tractors. Blower accidents usually occur when the pipe clogs up and someone is trying to loosen it. Never stand on a blower when it is running. Turn it off and then clear the pipe. Lets keep this harvest season an accident free season.

Feather Prof.'s Footnote: "Do not follow where the path may lead. Go instead where there is no path and leave a trail."

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

YOU ARE THE TEACHER
August 30, 1998

Background Scripture:
Proverbs 4 1-5, 6 20, 10 1, 22 6, 31:26-28
Devotional Reading:
Psalms 128 1-6

I am always wary of sweeping diagnoses and prescriptions for societal ills. So, when I read a letter to the editor that pontificates that the reason for juvenile delinquency and crime is always directly traceable to the failure of the parents, I want to object. I have known wonderful children to come from very troubled children to come from the homes where parents were loving, wise and responsible

Still, I must agree that many children today are lacking in the values that make for a stable and wholesome society. Is it because the parents are not trying to teach good values, or is it because the peer groups and culture are much more effective in shaping their values? Many spend more time in front of a television set than they do in the presence of their parents. They are exposed to values that are at least part of the problem.

I think part of it is also the society to which we expose them. If we don't like and and are uncomfortable with the values we see in children and today, might it not be our contemporary society we are seeing reflected in their lives? The problem might not be that they are rejecting our society, but that they have embraced it. Maybe we see mirrored in them a selfish, incompassionate, hostile and materialistic way of life.

The Reasons We Fail

Still, I would agree that none of us are doing a particularly effective job of teaching our children and youth values, morals and spiritual principles. Some parents are obviously too busy with their work or own good times. Others may not be teaching values because they don't have any to impart. Some may not want to "force" their values on their children as thy may believe their parents tried to force them. Others may not try to teach values because the believe professionals—school teachers, pastors, counselors—are equipped to do so and they are not.

Proverbs tells us, "Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it" (22:6). While there are certainly numerous, even glaring exceptions, still, as a rule, children will become better adults when parents and others make serious and persistent efforts to teach them values they hold to be vital.

I believe that an important reason parents fail in this role today is because they feel so inadequate. If that is true, then the churches, schools and institutions have failed to prepare them for this most important job.

MISSED OPPORTUNITIES

Thinking back to the days when my offspring were children and youth, I realized I missed a lot of good opportunities to teach my children. I took too much for granted. I wish now that, when I made certain decisions or choices, I had explained the values that lay behind them. When I made mistakes, I wish I had been more vocal in explaining why I was wrong. I think I assumed that since I preached a sermon every Sunday, my children would know what I believed and what was important to me. No so, I realized now

In a beautiful passage in Proverbs 31, we get a depiction of the ideal wife: "Strength and dignity are her clothing, and she laughs at the time to come. She opens her mouth with wisdom, and the teaching of kindness is on her tongue" (v. 26). My mother taught me kindness; I wonder whether I did.

Parents, however, cannot do the job all by themselves. Henry Rische in American Youth in Trouble, says: "We're the first generation that has ever said to parents, 'You and you alone must care for children.' When I was a little boy, I could get fed at forty houses and probably spanked in twelve. Lots of people took care of me.' "

If parents are going to be successful in teaching children of today, all of us need to be a part of the teaching team.

ATTENTION DAIRYMEN!

Do you need to:
- Lower Somatic Cell Count?
- Improve breeding efficiency?
- Stimulate appetite?
- Increase milk production?

BOVINE I from Nu-Health is for you!

This unique blend of micronutrients and vitamins has many dairymen talking...

"After using Bovine I for only 30 days, I saw a 23% drop in Somatic Cell Count, an increase in milk production, and most importantly heat cycles were almost immediately more detectable."

WE HAVE STIR AERATOR TO HELP WITH

FLY & ODOR CONTROL

BIG PERFORMANCE...SMALL PRICE

SIMPLE PROCEDURE: the aerator works directly into the bed of material, forming its own windrow. Windrows can be formed from piles of nearly any size. Alleyways are not required when using the Brown aerator, so there is a great reduction in space requirements. The aerator's reverse rotation works the material from the bottom up, and to the side, assuring complete mixing and agitation. LOW MAINTENANCE: the aerator is a simple design, the principle as a material mover has been proven with over 30 years experience in practical application. The aerator is hydraulically driven and equipped with patented wearplates or paddles, both of which are easily replaced.

CATTLE: Compared to last week's closing prices, slaughter steers closed 1.00 lower with the loss posted on Monday. There was some strength evident at mid-week, but the spark was mostly due to the small offering and late in the week demand was only moderate. Western cattle feeders received 1.00 less for their showlists this past week and there continues to be a record number of market- ready cattle that must be moved before prices have a chance to recover. Local slaughter heifers sold weak to 1.00 lower in a very light test. Slaughter cows ended the week .50-1.50 lower with the lowest point coming on Thursday. Slaughter bulls sold steady. This week's supply included 45 percent slaughter steers, 4 percent slaughter heifers, 36 percent slaughter cows, 5 percent bulls and the balance were feeder cattle.

DIRECT RETAIL Farm Marketing

JOHN BERRY
Penn State Extension
Marketing Agent

Agricultural marketing activities account for more than 17 percent of the nation's gross national product.

Seventy cents of every consumer food dollar goes to cover marketing expenses.

Being involved in marketing helps producers decide what to produce and when. Clearly, performing some marketing chores is a possible source of increased revenue.

According to academics, there are nine functions of marketing: buying, selling, storage, transportation, processing, grades and standards, financing, risk taking and marketing information.

One aspect of marketing that generates many questions is the function of selling.

"What should I be pricing my melons at?" is heard on many visits to local farm markets.

Of the nine functions of marketing, only selling generates cash. The prices must be a part of your overall marketing plan.

Cost of production is the basis of calculating price. However, pricing must be flexible enough to meet the competition and adjustable to changing situations.

As an integral part of the marketing plan, price must be set to meet the sales and financial goals of the enterprise.

Having a clear idea of your marketing objectives and the target market for your products makes selection of a "proper price" easier.

Cost Plus Method

Price mark-ups are an area of great confusion.

Mark-up should be given as a percent of the selling price. Net profit is greatly affected by calculating your mark-up incorrectly.

Cost plus mark-up equals selling price.

Here's an example. Let's say my marketing plan calls for a gross profit goal of 20 percent. Let's say a watermelon costs me $1.

The proper selling price is $1.25, not $1.20.

The cost of $1 plus mark-up of 25 cents equals a selling price of $1.25. This represents a 20-percent gross margin on the selling price.

A common incorrect method of calculating margin would be to take the cost at $1, add 20 percent, and get a selling price of $1.20.

The trouble with this incorrect method is when the accounting is done, I have received a 16-percent margin, not the 20 percent called for in my planning.

This "cost plus" method does not take into consideration the competition.

Remember, pricing at the level of the competition reflects the costs and perceptions at other farm markets, not yours. Your price is a result of your costs and the perception of your products by your customers.

Point Is Profit

We are trying to maximize total profits, not the profit per unit.

Are you willing to take a lower price if you could sell more units?

The following table gives you a picture of this game. The first row states that if your margin is 10 percent and you reduce your price 5 percent, it will take an increased sales volume of 100 percent to meet your planned revenue goals

Current % Profit Margin	% Price Reduction	Required % Increase in Sales Volume
10	5	100
15	5	50
15	10	200
20	5	33
20	10	100
25	5	25
25	10	67

An effective pricing strategy depends on four factors.

1. You must know your cost for each product.
2. Possible sales response to price change is vital.
3. What are the costs and prices of the competition?
4. What are the probable responses from the competition to what you do?

Proper pricing is essential to long-run business success. Pricing is as much a marketing concern as an accounting one.

Good pricing is a measure of management effectiveness.

Good pricing allows a retail farm market to more easily reach their marketing and financial goals.

Business Celebrates 100-Year Anniversary

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Since 1899 when Amos H. Hoffman first began producing a quality wheat seed for Pennsylvania farmers, Hoffman seeds has focused on helping growers produce profitable, high-yielding crops. At a banquet to celebrate their 100th anniversary with 250 guests at the Lancaster Host Motel and Conference Center Tuesday night, Ivan Kaufman, a long time employee gave a slide presentation of the history of the company. The Hoffman farm near Landisville where it all started was in the family in the early 1800's. Because millers needed quality grain, the Hoffman's started to produce seed to satisfy this need. At the time more than 300 grist mills, run by water power, were located within a 35 mile area in Lancaster County.

In the early 1900's oats and potatos were added to the fall catalog. At the time, the Colorado potato beetle had almost wiped out the U.S. potato crop so the Hoffmans got involved to provide seed potatoes to fill the need to replenish the potato stock. By 1910 grass seed was added. And of course seed corn became a specialty.

Morris Kauffman, who began working for the company in 1935 and retired about 12 years ago, recalled that in the begining all the corn was open pollinated. Only in 1939 did hybrid corn come on the market. "Hybrid corn became right for the mechanical equipment that was being developed at the time," Morris said. "And of course, yields more than doubled in a short period of time."

Through the years, Hoffman Seeds continued to grow with products being offered into expanded markets in the Midwest. Corn and soybeans are particularly sold in large volume. Today, a long term relationship with Novartis Seeds, Hoffman produces, markets, and distributes Novartis Seeds' full NK Brand product line in the Northeast and mid-Atlantic including corn, alfalfa, soybeans and wheat. The new technology capabilities has brought Hoffman a full line of value-added products that have been developed in their extensive research and testing programs.

George Ewing, Jr., chairman of the board, was in charge of the meeting. Special sales awards were presented. Louis Moore, Penn State specialist, well-known for his grasp of the marketing and production trends, was the guest speaker.

Pennsylvania Farmers Union Calls For Support Lifting Loan Caps

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Because it's the best way to bring meaningful relief to the region's farmers, Robert Junk, State President of the Pennsylvania Farmers Union, is calling on area producers to support legislation in Congress to eliminate the caps on commodity marketing loans rates.

The loan rates, capped at 1995 levels under the 1996 farm law, set an artificially low floor for commodity prices, leaving producers more vulnerable to price fluctuations. Legislation pending in Congress would lift the caps and extend the duration of the loan period from the current nine to 15 months. Both changes would give producers price protection and improve marketing flexibility.

"For producers being squeezed by depressed commodity prices, weather disasters, crop disease and rising production costs, removing the caps is the single best way to provide meaningful relief," said Robert Funk.

Lifting the caps would immediately increase loan rates by about 60 cents a bushel for wheat, 32 cents a bushel for corn, and 30 cents a bushel for soybeans. For example, by removing the caps:

- A wheat producer with 1,000 acres, yielding 30 bushels per acre, would receive an additional $18,000 in revenue this year.
- A corn farmer with 700 acres and a 125-bush-per-acre yield would receive an additional $28,000 in revenue this year.
- A soybean farmer with 500 acres and a 40-bushel-per-acre yield would receive an additional $6,000 in revenue this year.

"Washington is divided about how to best help America's farmers and ranchers, and time is running short," Robert Junk said. "We need to send a clear message to our elected representatives that we support removing the caps and that they should too. Pick up your phone and call and ask your senators and member of Congress to support lifting the caps."

Producers can contact their senators and member of Congress through the Capitol operator at 202-224-2131. For more information, call National Farmers Union at 1-877-4NO-CAPS (1-877-466-2277)

Kutztown Site For Second Southeast District Dairy Show

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

KUTZTOWN (Berks Co.) — The second 1998 Southeast District Dairy Show was held Tuesday at the Kutztown Fairgrounds in Kutztown.

The show saw a large turnout for Holsteins, as well as the allowance of two additional, but non-program dairy breed shows — one for the Lineback breed and one for the Red & White breed, which can be, but doesn't necessarily have to be, registered as a Holstein.

According to retired Chester County Dairy Agent Walter Wurster, who volunteered to help announce the show, the decision to allow the additional, non-program breed shows was done because the district show committee felt the show program is designed to benefit youth, not breed organizations.

He said that even though the two breeds — Lineback and Red & White (Red & White is somewhat of a controversial distinction as a separate breed) may not be recognized within the state or nation as dairy breeds of significance, the fact that local youth are using them in official 4-H projects and breeding programs is enough justification to allow them to be exhibited at the district level.

The turnout of Holstein junior-aged animals was especially strong for a district show. The winter calf class had 22 entries, with eight qualifying for the state show.

The other breeds, Jersey, Brown Swiss, Ayrshire and Guernsey also had respectable showings, and there were several Milking Shorthorn exhibited.

David Smith of Palmyra, past president and currently executive secretary of the Pennsylvania Dairymen's Association, judged Red & White, Brown Swiss, Guernsey, Jersey, and Ayrshire cattle.

David Castrogiovanni of Montrose judged the Holstein, Lineback and Milking Shorthorn breeds.

There are two qualifying shows offered in the Southeast District, one held earlier in July at the Lebanon Area Fairgrounds. The two shows were the district's 4-H and FFA shows, and continued as the strength of each seems to support doing so. In addition more youth from eastern counties seem to show at the Kutztown show, while those closer to Lebanon County seem to attend the earlier show.

Holstein

In the Holstein breed, the senior and grand champion was an aged cow, Davisdale Big Bertha, owned by Shelly Woodmansee, of Lake Como, in Wayne County.

The reserve senior and reserve grand champion was a 5-year-old, Reu-Hel Gabriel Surf, owned by Trisha Geist of Mertztown, Berks County.

The junior champion was a fall yearling, Juniperdale Skybuck Sybil, owned by Jennifer Ulmer of Nazareth, Northampton County.

The reserve junior champion Holstein was a spriung yearling, owned by David Nogan of Jermyn, Wayne County.

Jersey

In the Jersey breed, a pair of junior 3-year-olds captured grand and reserve grand champion honors.

Mike Tierney of Newton, Bucks County showed the grand and senior champion, Jaspar Renaissances Fragrant; while Travis Mast of Oley, Berks County showed the reserve senior and reserve grand champion, Limekiln Lester Oley.

Theron LaTourette of Honesdale, Wayne County showed the unior champion, a winter calf, CA Theo Khan Leslie.

Heather Moll of Orwigsburg, Schuylkill County, exhibited the reserve junior champion, a spring calf, HMM Marcus Tiger.

Brown Swiss

In the Brown Swiss breed, the senior and grand champion was a 4-year-old, Myline Dotson Ambition, exhibited by Jill Vail of Myerstown, Berks County.

The reserve senior and reserve grand champion was a senior 2-year-old, Brownswitch Con C Krystal, exhibited by Erica Lloyd of Pottstown, Chester County.

The junior champion of the show was spring yearling, Rivervale Challenge Charity, owned by Brandon Treichler of Kutztown.

The reserve junior champion was a spring calf, Rivervale Cool Kentruck, owned by Brett Treichler, also of Kutztown.

Guernsey

In the Guernsey breed, the senior and grand champion was a senior 2-year-old, Stone Mill Jay Hope, owned by Nathan Phillips of Mertztown.

The reserve senior and reserve grand champion was also a senior 2-year-old, French Creek Diaomond Ann, exhibited by Julie Sollenberger of Spring City, Chester County.

The junior champion was a spring calf, Nate Golden Billy Jewel, also owned by Nathan Phillips, while the reserve junior champion was a winter calf, Stone Mill WGS Jon Koelean, exhibited by Kara Brendlinger of Kempton in Berks County.

Ayrshire

In the Ayrshire breed, the senior and grand champion was a 4-year-old, Myline Trident's Reebok, owned by Jill Vail. Vail also showed the junior champion, a summer yealimg, Myuline Siroko Nacona.

The reserve senior and reserve grand champion was an aged cow, Exchange Miracle Freckles, owned by Meredith Baily of West Chester.

The reserve junior champion was a spring yearling, Vinemont Allstar Jadel, owned by Joseph Phillips of Mertztown.

Milking Shorthorn

There were three animals in the Milking Shorthorn show, all exhibited by Joell Koller of Leesport, Berks County. The quality of the champions was good, according to the judge.

The grand champion was the junior champion, a winter calf, Kuszmar Shamrock Patti; while the reserve grand champion was the reserve junior champion, a fall yearling, Pinesedge Patti of Kuszmar.

Lineback

There were six animals in the Lineback breed show and three exhibitors.

The grand champion Lineback was a junior 3-year-old, Carlson Famrs Hershey Kiss, owned by Eliza Jean Walton of Kennett Square, Chester County.

The reserve grand champion and reserve senior champion was a 4-year-old, Pocopson Meadow Freckles Sugar, owned by Meredith Baily of West Chester.

Jane Balmer, who farms with daughter Belle and son-in-law Terry Frey near Mount Joy, recently distributed a "grower interest form" (reproduced here) to county farmers. The form asks growers: are you in favor of a marketing organization, similar to Maryland's Tobacco Marketing Authority, that will unite the growers under one organization to sell tobacco?

The form was well-received. As a result, according to Balmer, about 150 people became interested, mostly in Lancaster County, in marketing the tobacco through the co-op-like association.

Balmer, with the help of the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau, looked at how Maryland growers are able to successfully market their tobacco through their state-supported organization. She received, she said, "too many phone calls from people who couldn't sell tobacco last year.

"If the tobacco industry is to survive," Balmer said that, like Maryland, "politics have to be played."

And that means forming a single, umbrella-type organization, member-supported and financed, that will bring the product to the buyers.

Balmer herself grows almost nine acres of Pa. 41 and Maryland 609 tobacco. From the past growing season the county Farm Bureau president still has 52 bales left of the Maryland 609 cigarette filler/blend tobacco to be sold.

Like most growers in Lancaster County, Balmer watches and waits for the tobacco buyers to budge.

So why isn't tobacco moving?

For the big tobacco manufacturers such as Philip Morris and R.J. Reinolds, there are two major buyers: Diamond International and Standard Commercial. The buyers get their orders from the big manufacturers to either buy directly from farms or attend the (now defunct) Paradise Tobacco Auction to bid on tobacco.

The Paradise Auction lasted about 12 years, and it was "good for us," said Balmer. However, she believed one of the reasons for its demise was "not enough farmer participation."

This year confusion reigned: the growers expected a minimum floor price of $1.50 a pound for Maryland 609. After all, a lot of independent contracts were going for about that rate. But the buyers were looking only for the top leaves, having little or no orders to buy anything else.

Balmer, like others, believes it is a combination of factors that led to this year's disastrous tobacco auction season. The buyers have told many growers that the proposed $515 billion suit against the U.S. tobacco industry, recently thrown out, could have put a halt on any kind of buying.

Buyers told Balmer that, because Pennsylvania was part of the proposal in paying their portions of the cost of the lawsuit, the processors would have to cut back on inventory. "That's what they told us," Balmer said. "I'm not sure if it's a straight story."

Because the Pennsylvania tobacco-growing industry is so unorganized, there was no leverage for growers to move the tobacco at the start of the season.

That could be one reason.

The other could have to do with the confusion on what prices to provide.

A lot of tobacco buying takes place on farms that are individually contracted to supply tobacco. Those prices could vary so tremendously that buyers aren't certain what to do.

Another reason could simply be, according to Balmer, that the tobacco industry in the state is fragmented and disorganized.

That situation can be remedied soon, according to Balmer.

At the end of September, a meeting is tentatively set, perhaps at the Paradise Auction Warehouse, to elect the officers and directors and to write up organizational by-laws. More information will be available in the next several weeks.

Meanwhile, the tobacco growers in Pennsylvania remain largely unorganized. Unlike Maryland, Pennsylvania does not require a license to buy tobacco. There is no set times, such as March and April in Maryland, to auction tobacco at one of several warehouse sites (Maryland has six such sites). In Pennsylvania, there is no state department of agriculture regulation, no licencing — unlike Maryland.

That could all change with the advent of the new Pennsylvania Tobacco Grower Marketing Association, according to Balmer.

"All but two of the 150 that responded to the idea of the association were favorable," she said. "Most are saying they are in favor of providing financing for it."

But some growers are balking at the idea of financially supporting their organization.

In Maryland, there is a checkoff of 10 cents per pound to market the tobacco with the nonprofit organization. That fee is used to pay for the lawyer and licensing programs and to run the association.

In Pennsylvania, the proposed checkoff would be about seven cents a pound, noted Balmer.

Like Maryland, Pennsylvania would provide a number of sites for the growers to drop off the tobacco to be sold. Those sites could include the Paradise area, the Kirkwood area, and perhaps Terre Hill or an area in or near Lebanon County.

The tobacco will be graded and moisture-tested at the auctions. The auctions would take place after Farm Show, perhaps into the middle of February. The details need to be worked out by the state organization.

Those who sell tobacco would receive a check in the mail from the sale within two days of the auction, according to preliminary plans.

Those who are receptive to the organization and the checkoff are some of the middle-aged and younger farmers, according to Balmer. Some of the older growers indicated that, regarding having money deducted from the sale price, "they never have and never will," she said.

The Pennsylvania Farm Bureau is helping to coordinate the program. Balmer noted that those who want to join the tobacco marketing organization do not have to be a member of the state Farm Bureau.

Already two million pounds of tobacco have been committed to sell through the state organization, Balmer said. "But there are probably 15 million pounds of tobacco grown here in the county," she said.

According to the Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service, in 1996 there were 7,000 acres of tobacco harvested in Lancaster County (800 in the remainder of the state). Lancaster County total pounds harvested was 13.88 million at a value of $22.5 million. State production value was $25.18 million.

Balmer noted that tax revenue for all parties — city, township, county, state, and federal — amounts to about $48,000 per acre for all tobacco commodities. Meanwhile, the average farmer receives about $3,000 an acre for the crop.

Jane Balmer helps distribute these anti-smoking tax bumper stickers.

Balmer said that, during a recent American Farm Bureau Convention in Nashville, Tenn., she attended a workshop on flue-cured tobacco. She discovered that of the seven biggest tobacco- growing states, the tobacco tax revenue more than covered each of the state's Medicare programs.

"If we wipe out tobacco and teach everyone not to smoke, who will pick up the money?" said Balmer.

In the state, in 1996 Pennsylvania growers harvested 4,600 acres of Pa. Type 41 and 3,200 pounds of Maryland 609. Type 41 tobacco is used in cigars and in chewing tobacco. Maryland 609 is used in a blend of other tobaccos in cigarettes.

For now, growers sit with their tobacco and wait. Much of it, if dried down to 20-22 percent moisture, will last for some time to come in proper storage — perhaps years.

Recently Balmer obtained information from the National Tobacco Council on the price of flue-cured tobacco. The price last week, she noted, as $1.59 per pound.

In the quota states, including Florida, Georgia, and the Carolinas, the expected harvest is 819 million pounds, though the growers only expect to get about 801 million pounds from the fields because of weather problems. Could Pennsylvania tobacco make up the difference? Possibly, according to Balmer. Maryland 609, while not a burley tobacco per se, is in the burly family of tobacco types.

Balmer remains optimistic for growers to sell the county's number one cash crop.

"We're still hoping to sell tobacco through the auction," she said. "We do think the buyers need this tobacco."

Balmer herself used to grow about 14 acres of tobacco. Now she grows a little more than eight acres of Pa. Type 41 and Maryland 609.

She remembers 1996 as probably the best year for growing tobacco, when she planted 10 acres.

One year she remembers buying hail insurance and collecting 100 percent from several damaging storms. She was grateful for the foresight in obtaining insurance.

Balmer also worries about prices. She said that, last week, she sold wheat for $2.42 a bushel. She remembers that, years ago, her husband Arlin, now deceased, went up into the attic and came down with a receipt for wheat sold on the farm from 1961. The bin-load of wheat sold to Spangler's of Mount Joy for $5 a bushel.

For this year, the tobacco crop has been satisfactory.

Balmer noted that the last two rainfalls have been really helped the crop. This year she planted the seedlings on May 20 — the earliest ever (usually the planting date is Memorial Day).

However, rains hampered the growth of the young crop and stunted it for a while. She believes that she has "85 to 90 percent of a super crop," she said, compared to years past.

Balmer has help from her daughter, Belle, and son-in-law, Terry Frey.

She drives or plants and uses a tractor hoe to cultivate. She uses herbicide and liquid fertilizer at planting, in addition to aphid control.

She sprayed for the prevention of blue mold in early July.

Because of the early warm season, the tobacco was ready for cutting and spearing early. Balmer believes that this time, by Labor Day, the cutting and spearing will be done.

"I love farming tobacco," she said. "I've always loved it. I believe it is the best physical and mental therapy we do on the farm. There isn't any expensive, noisy equipment. It's all handwork."

Balmer said that at planting and harvesting, they all "talk to each other, tell stories — it's pure enjoyment and physical exercise. That makes it fun.

"When work is fun, it's not work," she said. "It's enjoyment, and you love your job."

QUESTION: We have noticed that the percent of new infections in our herd SCC has doubled the last three months. Where should we look to find the cause of this?

ANSWER: SCC increases during the summer months are certainly not new to Pennsylvania dairymen.

High humidity, probably more than high temperatures, is the hardest thing on udder health. Couple the two and we have cows that have only one thing in mind, to keep cool. It's a wonder that every cow doesn't develop problems.

To look further into this herd's specific problem, we observe that from August 1, 1997, through May 1, 1998, the herd averaged 9.5 new infections per test period, or about 7 percent of the herd.

This information can be found on the SCC management report as well as Herd Summary II.

August 1998 shows these numbers increaseing to 17 new infections or 12 percent of the herd.

Finding solutions to these kinds of problems requires us to pinpoint target areas.

Try not to panic and make wholescale changes, but rather take small steps to ease the problem.

Look at the bottom right corner of Herd Summary II to see a SCC profile of cows by days in milk.

When examining this section of the herd in question, one very important detail is observed that may map a direction in solving this problem — in August 1998 there are a total of 21 cows in the 0-40 days in milk catagory. Of these 21 most recently fresh cows, seven are observed with new infections. Where are they becoming infected?

Infected cows on the first test day most likely become infected in one of three periods:

1. First two weeks following drying off.
2. During the springer period.
3. First two weeks after calving.

This herd also indicates that six of the 21 fresh animals are heifers. Fifty percent of these heifers were infected. With heifers not going through a dry period and a high rate of infection, we can't eliminate the dry cow period as a problem, but I'm inclined to concentrate on the springer and post-calving periods.

Doing CMTs on fresh cows indicated infection already at calving, so now we can look at the 3- to 4-week pre-fresh period.

Questions were raised about animal concentration and comfort, as well as bedding choice and cleanliness, in this herd.

Unfortunately, for this herd, or others like it, infections during this period are the most profit-robbing.

The estimated 1.5-pound milk loss per day by a 1-liner SCC code increase can be as much as 2- to 3-times this loss in early lactation.

Ag Progress Holds Hay Show

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — The results of the hay show held last week at Penn State University College of Agricultural Science's Ag Progress Days were released recently.

The show is designed to have three divisions, or sections, according to the way the hay was cured and preserved.

Each division consists of 10 classes of hay, according to species and mix.

For example, class 1, 11, and 21, each consist of first cutting alfalfa with nore more than 10 percent grasses.

All three who were named grand champion exhibitors won with entries in the second class of each division (Class 2, 12, and 22), which consists of later-cutting alfalfa with not more than 10 percent grasses.

In the Section I division, Robert Oswald of Nazareth, Northampton County, had the grand champion entry.

In the Section I division, the hay must be filed cured or is can be partially field cured and mow finished; no heat or preservatives can be used.

Robert Bieber, also of Nazareth, a several-times repeat winner in the show, was named grand champion of the Section II division, which allows partial field curing with some heat drying, but no preservatives.

In Section III, Don Myers of Spring Mills, in Centre County had the grand champion entry. In the Section III competition, the hay is partially field cured and has preservative added.

The show attempts to maintain recognition of the different skill achievements needed to create top quality hay when using the different curing and storing techniques.

This year, the results were reported differently. The results of entries by all 33 exhibitors were reported by name of exhibitor, instead of by show division and class.

Of special note, while none of his entries were selected as a grand champion, Nevin Rice of Blain, in Perry County, won four first places — every entry won its class.

RM Klein Hay & Straw Farms of Northampton took three first places and two second places with its five entries.

Of those exhibitors who won sectional grand championships, with three entries Bieber had two first places and one third; Don Myers had three entries also with two finishing in fourth place in their class, and his one first place; and Robert Oswald had one entry that, of course, also was a first place in its class.

However, to make the results understandable for comparison, the rest of the classes must be defined.

Classes 3, 13, and 23 entries had to be of a first cutting alfalfa/grass mix with more than 10 percent, but less than 50 percent grasses.

Classes 4, 14, and 24 entries had to be later cuttings of that alfalfa/grass mix.

Classes 5, 15, and 25 entries had to be clover hay with not more than 20 percent grasses.

Classes 6, 16, and 26 entries had to be clover hay with more than 20 percent, but less than 50 percent, grasses.

Classes 7, 17, and 27 entries had to be of first cutting grass hay with not more than 10 percent legumes.

Classes 8, 18, and 28 entries had to be later cutting grasses of that Class 7 mix.

Classes 9, 19, and 29 had to be mixed hay with more than 50 percent legumes and any mix other than grasses.

Classes 10, 20 and 30 were to be any mixture not classified in any other class that contains 50 percent of more grass mixed with alfalfa, clover or birdsfoot trefoil.

All entries submitted to the Ag Progress Hay Show are automatically entered in the state hay show during the state Farm Show.

Ayrshire Breeders Enjoy Picnic

BELLVILLE (Juniata Co.) — The Pennsylvania Aysrhire Breeders Association recently announced that its annual picnic held July 25 at the Rushing Springs Farm in Bedford was a strong success.

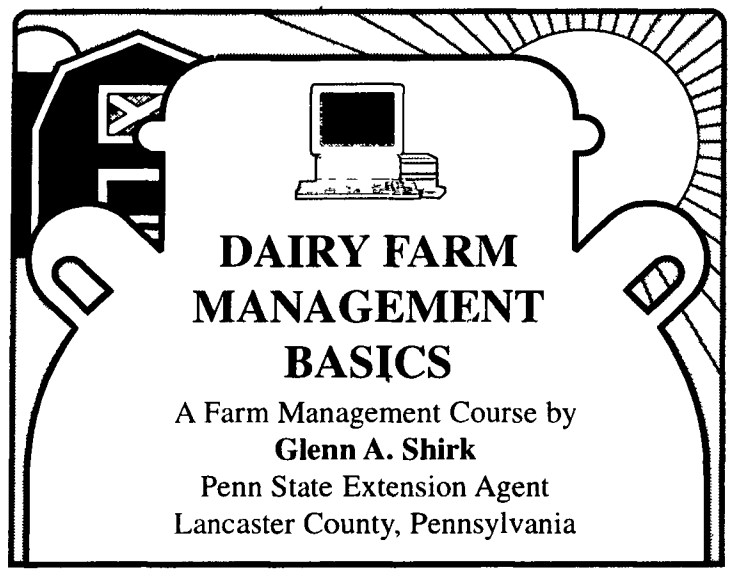
Rushing Springs Farm is owned by Curt and Thelma Sweinhart and family.

The day was filled with food, games, activities, a state association meeting, tours of the newly refurbished farm as well as nearby Historic Bedford, and fellowship.

According to Ben Hillyard, association president, "The Swienhart herd and farm looked tremendouse and the Swienhart family was a true delight of the day."

Larry Morris, assistant professor of dairy science at Delaware Valley College talked about the college and changes taking place there. He said that 70 out of 84 students are now taking dairy science studies at Delaware Valley College. He said he was looking for support rom the Ayrshire Association in helping to find some good quality animals for the college.

John Rogers, of Belleville, a national delegate, updated the group on the National Ayrshire Association and plans to promote the Ayrshire. He also talked about the upcoming "Raise to Graze Sale," set to be held at his Plum Bottom Farm on Sept. 19. There are to be 50 to 60 head of bred heifers and some first lactation cows offered for sale.



Meet the Nutrient Needs of All Cattle Article 13

Goal Meet the nutrient needs of all cattle, including lactating cows dry cows, bred heifers and youngstock
Prepare dry cows and heifers for their next lactation
Prevent problems associated with calving time and with early lactation
Prevent appetite problems and metabolic problems

Needs of cattle vary with age, stage of lactation and stage of pregnancy, as shown in the table Thus, it is important to develop rations for all groups of cattle, not just the lactating group For specific feeding advice, consult your nutritionist

Feeding the Pre-Calving Group

The excuse "I don't have facilities to handle and feed my dry cow separtely" does not hold water! If you are really serious about wanting the milking herd to perform well and profitably, you need to invest in heifer and dry cow facilities that will enable you to handle and feed them properly, or find someone else who can do the job properly

Remember
- Dry cows and late-bred heifers are next months' milkers
- Calves and heifers are your future milkers
- Their milk of tomorrow depends on their care today
- Short change heifers and dry cows, and they will short change you!

A cow's lactation starts months ahead of the day she calves The pre-calving care of heifers and dry cows has a major affect on lactation performance, mastitis, reproduction, metabolic problems and longevity! A lot needs to be accomplished in this pre-calving period!

1 Heifers need to be well grown out before they calve Holstein heifers should weigh about 1200 lb after calving Larger heifers generally experience fewer calving problems Undersized, high producing heifers have a difficult time meeting all their nutrient needs for production, for flesh maintenance and for growth They'll be thinner and have more breeding difficulties and may not be in good enough flesh to turn dry and begin their next lactation Thus, it is nice if heifers can have a lot of their growth done before calving

2 Get heifers and dry cows in proper flesh, about a body score of 3 5, and don't let them lose any flesh, even if they have gotten too fat The last thing you want to do is have them draw down their body reserves just before calving, that is when their need for body reserves is greatest

3 Develop gut capacity before calving so it's there to serve them well after calving, when they really need it Stuff them with a bulky ration and restrict the energy density to control their flesh

4 Foster good rumen function by feeding lots of forages

5 Start encouraging the development of the right kind of rumen microbes by gradually increasing the grain intake, starting about 3 weeks before calving, and peaking at about 0 5 to 0 7% of body weight within a few days of calving At this same time start introducing them to small quantities of the same feeds they will be getting after calving

6 Stimulate the development of rumen papillae These are the finger-like projections that grow out from the rumen wall and greatly increase the absorption of nutrients from the rumen into the blood stream where the nutrients can be utilized by the cow It takes about 3 weeks for papillae to develop, and their development is stimulated by the grain feeding, as discussed earlier It is important for these papillae to be in place ready to work at calving time The cow can't wait 3 weeks after calving for this to be done If the papillae are not functioning well after calving, and grain feeding increases, the fatty acids that are produced as a result of digestion can not be absorbed as effectively Thus they accumulate in the rumen, triggering acidosis, off feed problems, ketosis, DA's, laminitis, etc

7 Acclimate heifers to their new herd mates, their new surroundings, new workers, new noises and new routines This reduces the social stress at this very critical time in their life

8 Maximize DMI, and do everything possible to keep cows from going off feed at calving time DMI generally drops at this time, and in some cases, it may be beneficial to feed cows a special ration or a "stress packet" Discuss these concerns with your nutritionist

9 Prevent infections that stress the animal's immune system or throw her off feed Provide a clean, dry maternity area, and be sure the ration is properly fortified with selenium and vitamin E

In other business, Hillyard presented awards to representatives of the top five Ayrshire herds in the Pennsylvania Ayrshire Breeders Association — in order, Don Gable of Conebella Farm in Chester County, Jim Finley, Dale and Patty Maulfair of Lebanon County, Doug Stewart, and Warren Schmuck.

Also announced was the top herd for New Jersey, the Alvin String herd of String-Along Farm; as well as the top West Virginia Ayrshire herd, that owned by the West Virginia University Dairy Department.

"Congratulations go out to all of the top herds on a job well done," Hillyard said.

He also reminded youth of a Sept. 21 meeting in Room E of the state Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg. The meeting is being held in conjunction with the Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show held during the week at the Farm Show Complex.

In other news, Milt Brubaker of Lancaster won the sire judging contest held during the picnic. Don Gable was first in a calf-judging contest.

Set goals on your farm; such as 75 percent cows calving with a LSCC code 3, or less. Raise that goal to 85 percent for fresh heifers.

Try to pinpoint the weak link in SCC management and aggressively attack that area.

Here are just a few suggestions about SCC, especially during early lactation:

1. Start control measures at dry-off, by working with your vet on a good dry cow program.

2. Provide a clean, dry, roomy area for springers.

3. Provide sound diets, paying special attention to immune response consideration with your nutritionist.

4. Consider the use of a dip or barrier dip during close-up period.

5. You may to pre-milk the leaky, pre-fresh cows.

Problem solving is a teamwork chore. Forming this team can be a challenge. PA DHIA can help. If you have questions, get in touch with me.

tions The startling changes of frame size, back-fat, and feed conversion efficiency amazed the audience. His program was directed to all breeders to show the strides the breed has made toward producing cattle that meet the needs of today's consumer.

Kathy Finnerty from Cornell Extension Service presented a program on the necessity of calf uniformity. This timely presentation covered the reasons why calf uniformity was necessary from every aspect of production, from a uniform cow herd at the start of the cycle, to a narrow calving window, to feed conversion and uniformity in size at weaning when marketing cattle to feed lots. This creates a saleability that fits with the needs of the major stockyards around the country as well as the marketing to the end consumer.

Mike Baker from Cornell Extension Service, followed Finnerty with an update on the protein in cattle feed ration study Cornell is working on, as well as making the group aware of the variety and scope of the many programs offered through Cornell.

During lunch, two Hereford queens, Theresa Wheeler and Jillayne Davis, informed those present about what the juniors are doing and the accomplishments of the area junior national held in Springfield, Ill.

After lunch, Monte Soules gave a lively presentation on the "right kind" of cattle. This included a graphic demonstration of his thoughts using live animals. He brought into focus what the breed must do to be competitive as well as what the end consumer will require of the industry in the not-too-distant future.

Dr. John Higgins of Acorn Embryo Service followed with demonstrations of the latest technology in artificial insemination, embryo transfer, and ultrasound. His demonstration was greatly enhanced by the use of a high powered microscope which allowed the audience to view actual embryos. Dr. Higgins provided a look into the future by demonstrating how ultrasound technology is applied for pregnancy checking and marbling of the rib-eye.

The day was closed with a Certified Hereford Beef update from Rob Ames and Jim Williams from the American Hereford Association in Kansas City, Mo.

Dr. Jon Higgins, Acorn Embryo Services, Bellemead, NJ, conducts an embryo transfer demonstration.

al science. Such topics appear in the agriculture biology curriculum.

The day's activities began with a field trip to Way-Har Farms and Dairy Store. Students were exposed to large animal experiences, such as veterinary health; taking the temperature of an animal, nutrition, and animal waste handling.

The feeding of a baby calf from a bottle was demonstrated. Students learned that this simple activity starts the process of digestion. Later in the day a comparison of the digestion of milk in the abomasum was compared to the process of cheese manufacturing.

A tour of the dairy plant's processing facility provided a basis to understanding pasteurization, homogenization, and quality assurance. Product availability included a taste test of ice cream, soft or hand-dipped.

Small animal care utilizing rabbits provided the students with instruction in meeting basic needs—food, water, and shelter. Students also participated in a discussion on reproductive physiology of a rabbit. Agriculture biology students maintain collectively four New Zealand rabbits during the school year and produce bunnies from them.

Microorganisms—good bugs—were utilized by students who worked in pairs to accurately produce yogurt. Measuring ingredients, stirring, and monitoring temperature were skills students developed in a food science laboratory atmosphere.

Plant propagation was experienced by those in attendance through a technique known as twin scale propagation. Amaryllis bulbs were divided and scaled by the students. A method of plant propagation uses a specialized portion of the plant's structure.

When students left the school from the day's activities, they took along scales and soil and placed in zip-lock type bags. Their assignment included the daily observation of the scale's edge, moisture content, and bulbet formation. Maintaining a log of the observation was emphasized.

A walk-through of the nearby school's wildlife area provided students with the opportunity to test water from a pond. Nitrate, phosphate, and pH readings were measured from a pond bordering the wildlife area and lying next to an agronomic field. Reading chemical test results and visual observations encouraged students to draw conclusions about test results and environmental practices utilized.

Students had the opportunity to interact with peers and share their ideas and concerns while learning more about the curriculum.

Follow-up visitations to each student's project site and a meeting with parents follows the orientation.

FFA officers had the opportunity to assist with the day's activities. President Oralyn Folk and Student Advisor Matthew Forry participated and demonstrated.

Students attending included David Bahner, Derek Behney, Grace Cole, Rochelle Galen, Matthew Geib, Dustin Gingrich, Kristen Gross, Travis Kiene, Cathy Levan, Elizabeth Loump, John Hartman, Holly Moyer, Emily Olesh, Jessica Stern, Luke Troutman, Matthew Wenger, Jennifer Wisniewski, and Danielle Wiczalkowski.

New York Farm Bureau Offers Legal Strategies

ALBANY, N.Y. – John Lincoln, president of New York Farm Bureau, announced that the organization is developing a handbook to assist agricultural employers in dealing with the enforcement efforts of the Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS), and has scheduled three regional informational seminars designed to supplement the new handbook.

In order to assist both agricultural employers and employees in understanding their rights as outlined in the handbook, New York Farm Bureau has scheduled several regional seminars that will discuss the tactics frequently employed by INS officials, and the legal rights which producers and farmworkers may exercise to limit the dissruption of business operations.

The three educational seminars are scheduled as follows; Aug. 17 from 6-9 p.m. in The Empire Room at the New York State Fairgrounds in Syracuse; Aug. 18, from 6-9 p.m. in the Trolley Building at the Orleans County Fairgrounds in Ridgeway; and Aug. 19, from 6-9 p.m. in the Ballroom at the Quality Inn in Newark.

The seminars are to be conducted by attorney David M. Kresock of Harter, Secrest & E"mery LLP.

Anyone who can not attend one of the seminars, but who is interested in receiving the booklet, can obtain a copy by sending their name, address and $1 per copy to the New York Farm Bureau Legal Defense Fund, P.O. Box 992, Glenmont, NY 12077-0992.

Bard's 'Baby' No Tiny Swine Champion At Elizabethtown

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

ELIZABETHTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — Of all the pigs that Elizabeth Bard could have selected, the one she claims was the littlest, "Baby," climbed its way to the top, taking supreme market hog with the heavyweight champion, a Spotted and Yorkshire crossbred gilt Tuesday night at the Elizabethtown Fair.

Elizabeth, 9, won her first Elizabethtown Fair championship with a hog from the Keith Bard herd in Portage.

Elizabeth, daughter of Mary and Gregg Bard, Elizabethtown, is in the fourth grade at Fairview Elementary. The pig, the littlest one of her selection, wasn't padded and protected, though — the exhibitor exercised Baby daily, sometimes literally running it around the barn.

The hog definitely caught the eye of Daryl Bomgardner, Lebanon, who judged the show. When Bomgardner selected the hog as heavyweight champion, he admired it because the hog was "super lean" and "big-framed — the crispest, tightest, leanest hog" in the ring, he said. The hog was impressive through the lower and center portions of the ham, he noted.

Bomgardner praised the hog again when he selected it as supreme champion, indicating the hog exhibited the "firmness and crispness of the center portion of the ham," he said. "I really like this hog up through its front end."

The championship completed Elizabeth's show season in a big way.

The reserve suited Bomgardner the most when selected from the light heavyweight division for champion. The judged noted that it had the most width in its division, and "satisfied me in terms of production and from the packer's standpoint," he said.

Eric Ober showed the reserve champion hog overall, the light heavyweight division champion. Eric showed a Hampshire crossbred gilt.

Eric, 17, is the son of Paul and Deb Ober, Manheim. He's a senior at Elizabethtown High School.

This was Eric's first reserve champion at Elizabethtown.

Eric noted that he won champion at Ephrata last year. The hog was bred by Kerry Boyd, Ephrata.

Eric, seven-year 4-H member, said he also breeds hogs in Manheim. He plans to take about 36 hogs to various fairs this year, including Denver, Ephrata, and New Holland.

Lightweight champion was the 227-pound hog shown by Blaine Brown. Reserve was the 233-pound hog shown by Chris Hess.

Medium weight champion was the 239-pound hog shown by Joelynn Donough. Reserve was the 238-pound hog shown by Matt Hornung.

Light heavyweight champion was the 255-pound hog shown by Eric Ober. Reserve was the 250-pound hog shown by Joelynn Donough.

Heavyweight champion was the 258-pound hog shown by Elizabeth Bard. Reserve was the 261-pound hog shown by Amy Bollinger.

Showmanship champions included Derick Bollinger, Amy Becker, Ryan Zeiset, and Jonathan Haldeman.

Bidding Good At Bedford Fair Livestock Sale

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

BEDFORD (Bedford Co.) — It was only a few minutes after 9 a.m. when Brian Sell of Bedford Chrysler purchased the 1998 grand champion lamb owned by Tanner Waltemire of Everett for $11.25. The price for the 126-pound heavyweight brought a quick smile to the young man's face.

"Last year I had grand champion carcass," he beamed. "This year it's grand champion. Two years ago, my brother had the grand champion carcass and he went on to have grand champion lamb last year."

Waltemire's grand champion was resold for $1.40 to Dr. Mark Findner with the proceeds going to the scholarship fund. This is a fund provided for fair sale youth who are going on to school. It is divided among them for their first year at college or institute of higher learning.

Eli Blackburn, Bedford, sold his 120-pound reserve grand champion to American Outfitters for $5.50.

Krista Myers, Bedford, has the 59-pound grand champion carcass which sold for $8.50 and was purchased by Richard Johnston of Johnston Realty.

Thomas Chevrolet bought the 67-pound reserve champion carcass owned by Shaun Styer for $6.25.

Champion lightweight, 107 pounds, owned by Doug Koontz went for $3.50 to Farm Bureau.

Bedford County Register and Recorder Faith Zembower bought the 126-pound champion middleweight owned by Eli Blackburn for $125.

Nicki Smith sold her 105-pound champion lightweight to Kay Kring, a teacher at Northern Bedford County High School, for $1.80 and Krista Myers came back into the ring to sell her reserve champion middleweight for $3 to her uncle, Roy Kegg.

A total of 81 lambs were sold with prices remaining high.

Beef Cattle

The 1,243-pound grand champion heavyweight crossbred shown by Doug Koontz was purchased by Bob Turkovich of American Outfitters for $6 a pound. Turkovich then donated the animal to the Bedford Fire Department to be used as they wish for a fund-raiser.

Justin Claycomb heard the bidding stop on his 1,225-pound crossbred reserve grand champion for $2.25 per pound to Hoss's Steak and Seafood.

O'Neal Forestry bought the 1,289-pound champion county bred Limousin owned by Joshua Cogan for $1.05 per pound. The champion homebred was bought by American Outfitters and again donated to the fire company for $1.35 per pound. A Limousin, it was owned by LaDonna Miller and weighed in at 1,305 pounds.

The reserve champion county bred, a 1,220-pound crossbred owned by Roger Lewis, went for $1 per pound to Bedford Ford.

Back in the ring, LaDonna Miller saw her 1,264-pound Limousin reserve champion homebred sell for $1.01 per pound to Ben Kendall, CPA.

C.A. Detwiler had the third-place champion heavyweight 1,260-pound Angus which sold for $1.99 per pound to Dave Opal Associates.

Nathan Claycomb, far from a newcomer, had the reserve 1,039-pound champion lightweight which sold to Creative Pultrusiions for $1.15 a pound. Third place lightweight owned by John Claycomb went to Gateway Restaurant for $1.15 per pound. Gary Kane purchased the third place medium weight from Jason Mickle for $1.01 per pound.

The reserve champion sold for 98 cents on a resale. It was purchased by Altoona First Savings

(Turn to Page A38)

Tanner Waltemier beams as Brian Sell of Bedford Chrysler poses for a picture. The lamb sold for $11.25 per pound.

Dr. Mark Finder set a precedent as he purchased the first-time dairy market basket for $1,725. Shown here are Dr. Finder, Jan Snider with the supreme champion cow, Barbara Mearkle from the dairy committee, and Cindy Mearkle, dairy maid.

Bob Turkovich and grandchildren take the reins of the 1,243-pound crossbred owned by Doug Koontz. Turkovich of American Outfitters paid $6 per pound.

Randy Koontz sold his grand champion hog to Bedford Ford.

Linda Redman, representing Bedford Valley Petroleum, paid $17 a pound for the first meat goat. Owned by Melissa Shastay, it weighed in at 65 pounds. Redman gave the goat back to Melissa.

Traditionally a supreme over all species is selected among market animals at the E-town Fair. But this year, supreme champions over all breeds were selected in both the market and the non-selling animals. The award was given in honor of George Mentzler, nationally known Polled Hereford breeder and owner of Salunga Acres, who died about one year ago.. Selling her steer, which was selected as the supreme champion market animal over all species, is Jill Hoffines of Marietta. Hoss's Steak and Seahouse represented by Rob Billet and children Shawndy and Jordan and friend Shawn pay $1,450 for the 1,221-pound black Angus. A hefty trophy was presented to Heather Brubaker who exhibited Great View B-Star Mabel, a 5-year-old Holstein. The Holstein was selected as supreme champion over all other species at the Fair. Fair Queen Sarah Wolgemuth holds the commerative plaque and Frank Graybill, judge, holds the trophy. More coverage on the sale, sheep and dairy shows will appear in next week's issue.

Ayrshire Princess Shares Love For Breed

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

FAWN GROVE (York Co.) — She started out raising black and whites, then accented her herd with a dash of red

Now Susan Richardson is making her mark in the regional Ayrshire arena, both with her junior project animals and as the 1998 Pennsylvania Ayrshire Princess.

Susan, 16, is the oldest of three daughters of Charles and Ruth Richardson, Fawn Grove. The Richardson operation includes 400 acres of crops and a milking herd of 60 mostly home-bred Holsteins and some colored breed cattle that entered the family dairying picture as 4-H project calves.

Encouraged by her dad and an aunt who had been 4-H'ers, Susan enrolled in the dairy program when she was 10 years old.

"My dad really wanted me to join," she recalls. "He dug out his old clippers and halters for me." Two years later, younger sisters Barbara, 14 and Tracy, 11, followed in the family's 4-H dairy footsteps.

As her involvement with showing cattle developed, Susan became interested in the Ayrshire breed. This season she is exhibiting two cows and two heifers.

"I've been lucky enough to have them calve out well," she says as her heifers have matured and developed. Her Wentworth-Farm Ms. Merrilee and Wentworth-Farm Heidi-Ho, junior and senior two-year-olds, took Ayrshire breed champion and reserve honors at the York 4-H roundup in late July That same week, Heidi-Ho was selected the supreme champion at the Cecil County, Maryland, open dairy show

Fellow Ayrshire enthusiasts encouraged Susan to become more active in the breed association's youth programs. Initially, she shunned the idea of running for the state Ayrshire princess title.

"I don't particularly like to get dressed up," she admits with a chuckle. But after watching Marylander Becky Patrick crowned a. the national Ayrshire princess last year, Susan began to give the idea more serious thought.

Along with three other contestants, she participated in the princess contest at the 1998 Pennsylvania Ayrshire Association's annual meeting, held at Towanda in late March. When the interviews and impromptu questions were over, Susan was the new Pennsylvania Ayrshire Princess.

In June, she attended the national Ayrshire convention in Iowa, not as a princess contestant, but as a member of the four person quiz bowl team representing Maryland and Pennsylvania. The team took second place out of eight.

As a spokesperson for Ayshire cattle, Susan participates in various youth and general events, helps with ribbon and trophy awards at shows, and promotes the breed. Part of that responsibility includes speaking before groups, a skill that Susan both enjoys and is comfortable with She credits her speaking abilities in part to 4-H public speaking and demonstrations, and especially to dairy judging.

"At first I was not interested in judging; I didn't think I would be any good at it," she confesses She credits youth dairy judging leaders, including Jerry Myers, Paul Knight, Scott Cooper, and Jeff Rutz, for their encouragement and help in honing her dairy judging skills.

"I love it," she says of the challenge of placing, remembering and presenting oral judging reasons for classes of dairy cattle. Her skill is evident in that she finished third in dairy judging at the recent 4-H State Days held the first week of August at Penn State, and was part of the York County team which placed second. As state third-high individual, Susan will be part of the four-member dairy judging team representing Pennsylvania at the national youth judging contest at the October World Dairy Expo in Madison, Wisconsin.

Susan is also an accomplished cattle showman and fitter who thoroughly enjoys the challenge of training, preparing and exhibiting her animals.

"Showing gives me a chance to present them to others," she says. The showing has also helped expand her interests in other aspects of dairying, including a keener interest in the family herd feeding program.

"I do all my own fitting," Susan is quick to emphasize. "I think 4-Hers especially should

After Tornado 'You've Got To Do What You've Got To Do'

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

FLEETWOOD (Berks Co.) — "May 31 was the worst day of my life," said Larry Mertz. "But the worst thing about that day is this ongoing mess."

May 31 marks the date that a tornado roared through the Fleetwood-Lyons area. The memory of it has faded from the minds of those who read or heard about it through the media. Unfortunately, the tornado's devastating effects drag on for the Mertz family and others trying to clean up from the aftermath.

"We are stressed to the max. We're working day and night and there is no end in sight," Larry said of cleaning up the debris flung across their 400-acre farm. In addition the family continues to perform the daily ongoing duties associated with milking 120 cows and raising crops.

When the tornado tore through the area on May 31, it hit the neighboring Luke Kurtz farm head-on, then sideswiped the Mertz farm and dumped most of the debris from the Kurtz farm on the Mertz's farmland.

The impact of the tornado cannot be described in words. For someone not involved in the damage, it might sound frustrating but not impossible to replace the roofs torn from both the barn and house, the chimney, the porch, the flattened equipment shed, and shattered windows. In addition there was lots of equipment damage done to the forage wagon, manure pump, 10-wheeler truck, two pickup trucks, riding lawn mower, and the family swimming pool. Calf pens were picked up but calves stayed behind.

But it's the never-ending cleanup that constantly looms over them that is most frustrating.

The farm's formerly flat fields are now deeply rutted from holes, many inflicted randomly from the beams, metal, and steel the tornado gathered from the Kurtz farm and jabbed into the soil on the Mertz farm.

"There're holes all over the ground. You can't believe how beams and rafters were thrust right into the soil. You can remove the stuff, and there will be deep holes left," Larry said.

In fact hundreds of volunteers had combed the fields in the days following the tornado. They gathered wagonload after load of splintered work, twisted metal, and nails. Whatever could not be salvaged was was placed on a pile, which burned for more than a week.

But one of the idosyncracies of storm clean up is that a job may appear to be done, but isn't. A case in point is the result of what happened when Mertz attempted to harvest a 30-acre wheat field behind his house. To passerbys,

(Turn to Page B12)

Larry and Carol Mertz with daughter Michele and grandson Tyler stand in front of their home, which is being repaired after a tornado damaged it. Passerbys might think that rebuilding is almost completed, but it's the never ending cleanup that frustrates farmers. The farm's former tillable flat land is now rutted with holes from steel and beams the tornado thrust into the ground. Even after hundreds of volunteers removed trailer loads of debris, harvesting results in constant flat tires and machinery breakdowns from splintered wood, twisted metal, and nails imbedded in the soil.

Hearts And Hands Sew For Kids

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — Fleece jackets are in vogue these days. Thanks to the efforts of Hearts & Hands, about 250 needy children will each receive a fluffy, warm fleece pullover.

According to Julie Wegelin, who operates Julie Wegelin's Sewing Cellar, Hearts & Hands is an intergenerational community awareness project in which experienced and novice seamstresses are teamed with school-age children to assembly-line sew the jackets.

This logo designed by Terry Dillman will be inserted in each pullover.

Even if you can't sew, even if you think the project is too complicated, Wegelin promises, "We have something for you to do."

In the assembly-line process, both sewing and non-sewing jobs are incorporated into finishing the fleece pullover.

The project has already begun and will continue on specified dates and places during September and October. Volunteers are encouraged to work in two-hour shifts during the designated days. Of course, those who wish to work longer are welcome to stay.

Already quality fleece fabric, zippers, and cuffs have been purchased. Volunteers have worked together to cut out the fleece and prepare it for sewing.

One of the people working hard behind the scenes is Terry Dillman, owner of Don Kauffman's Sewing located in Temple. He has designed a logo to stitch into each pullover. The colorful logo is made on a computerized sewing machine. Dillman said operators are needed for the sewing machines that his company will provide during each scheduled session.

Training of volunteers who are helping oversee the project will be Saturday, Sept. 16, from 9:30 to noon at the Berks County Agriculture Center.

The actual sewing and finishing of the fleece pullovers will take place at the Berks County Agriculture Center Oct. 1, 5, 6, and 8 from 9 a.m. to 8:30 p.m.; and Oct. 15, from 10 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. at the Fairgrounds Square Mall.

Fay Strickler, home economist for Berks County Extension, is helping with the project. She said

(Turn to Page B4)

Julie Wegelin, seated, and Terry Dillman, standing behind her, show volunteers how fleece pullovers will be constructed in assembly-line fashion. More than 250 fleece pullovers will be distributed to the needy. Volunteers, from 12 years of age and up, are needed to work in two-hour shifts for both sewing and non-sewing jobs during selected days.

Enter Hanging Baskets At The Fair

With the fair season upon us, gardeners are preparing their hanging baskets for judging. Basket displays that are simple, containing two or three colors and two plant types plus a texture or trailing plant look best. For example, traditional combinations like red geraniums and vinca vines or pink or white geraniums with dusty miller look great late in the summer.

As your hanging basket increases in size, consider the surrounding plantscape and the location's exposure to sun and shade Most baskets are displayed at eye level. Larger baskets may require higher placement. Too few or too many baskets can spoil the effect of some displays. For example, a basket with yellow marigolds with purple or cascading petunias provides a singular striking appearance. In this case, this hanging basket requires a simple color background and should be placed at the proper eye level for the best effect.

Before selecting your best hanging basket to enter at the fair, think of how you select clothing – there are many possibilities, and your choice will ultimately depend on your personal taste. Generally, plants with a good hanging or trailing form are favored by judges. But, feel free to experiment and enter baskets with unusual container plants Here's a few ideas jacobean lilies, lantana, dwarf zinnias, portulaca, verbena, ageratum, snapdragon, dwarf dahlia varieties, tuberous begonias and salvia Try to avoid entering hanging baskets with plants that are too large and upright.

Foliage plants that are most attractive in hanging containers include: asparagus fern, pothos, English ivy, ferns, Swedish ivy, vining philodendron, air plant, grape ivy, wandering Jew, baby's tears, artillery plant, coleus, and hoya

Flowering types include begonias, climbing geranium, fuchsias, shrimp plant, and bougainvillea. But don't feel limited to just only ornamental plants. Even culinary materials like leaf lettuce, parsley, radishes, nasturtiums and basil look good in baskets.

It's often a toss up with judges as to whether the plant or the container should provide the greatest visual appeal A fully developed hanging plant usually camouflages the container allowing the plant, rather than the container to be the outstanding feature.

Common containers include wood, ceramic, plastic, and moss covered wire. Prior to entering the fair, water the baskets completely and trim extraneous branches or flowers. Normally, because baskets dry out within 1 or 2 days, keeping plants watered is a major concern at the fair. A convenient method of watering wire baskets at home is immersing the container in a tub of water, allowing the water to saturate the basket.

Need an idea for next year's fair? Try a new trailing plant like alyssum, ivy geranium, fuchsia or dusty miller. Or, be your own judge at the fair Which hanging basket received first prize? What combination of plants was used and what substitutions would look best at your home? But, most of all, if you can't decide what you like best, just enjoy the flowers and foliage displays at your local community fair

Ayrshire Princess

not have a professional fitter getting their cattle ready We should do our own work. It discourages me when those who win haven't prepared their own animals. I take pride in doing my own fitting."

Her speaking and leadership skills serve Susan well as a member of the Kennard-Dale High School vo-ag and FFA program, where she is a scholastic honor roll student Entering her sophomore year, Susan is treasurer of the school's FFA chapter and carries a variety of projects, including dairy animals, dairy employment, market swine, lamb finishing, and diversified livestock.

After several years of non-participation as a chapter, several Kennard-Dale FFA members teamed up this spring to practice for and participate as in the state parliamentary procedure competition. Susan, with her enjoyment of public speaking, finds it very challenging, and was especially pleased that their fledgling team placed fifth at the state contest

With her avid interest in cattle and dairying, Susan is eyeing a career in the field, perhaps working with sire analysis or as an A.I. organization field representative

"I'd like to continue using what I've learned in judging and utilize that in my future job," she said While Penn State is on her list for college consideration, Susan is also looking at the many other options available for agricultural studies, both in and out of state.

Meanwhile, she continues to enjoy her Ayrshire Princess role and the opportunity it affords to participate in shows and breed events Her fall schedule is already filling up, with upcoming 4-H regional and area fair competitions, as well as the Madison judging competition Because of those commitments, she has had to forgo participation in the school's marching band, where she plays French horn, since practices conflict with her commitment to cattle shows

In 1999, the National Ayrshire Association's annual convention will be hosted by regional breeders in Maryland Part of that convention will be selection on a new national Ayrshire Princess. And, while she hasn't made up her mind for certain, there is a good chance that Susan Richardson, the 1998 Pennsylvania Ayrshire Princess, will be in the running.

I confess. I haven't paid much attention to all the warnings.

Computer experts have warned us for a couple of years about the upcoming technological asteroid of the turn of the century. The Year 2000 Gliche. The Y2K problem.

Just in case you've been in Outer Mongolia and out of reach of satellite, digital or network information, there's this little problem in the computer industry. Computers have been programmed to read the last two digits of the year, 60, 70, 80, 98, 99, etc.

But now, in the fast fading months remaining in the decade of the 90s, face-to-face with the turn of the century and the reality of inputting 01/01/00 (boy, that will take some getting used to!), it has dawned on us that computers have—in many cases— not been smartened up to read two zero numbers in the year slot Instead, they'll probably either go into hard drive cardiac arrest or flash onto the screen one of this highly-aggravating error messages, which in turn prompt the operator to threaten their hardware with a two-by-four

Until last week, I just assumed the wizards of Silicon Valley will surely have figured out a quick fix and would release it with a bunch of hype just in time to laugh all the way to the bank before their statements read the year 2000 The Y2K issue would be somehow fixable with upgrade software priced at $99.99 and with a $25 rebate if you ACT NOW

So simple So frighteningly complex And, so potentially dangerous

Reality is, the Y2K issue might not just affect our bank or credit card company's ability to handle figuring interest or crediting payments or keeping track of the charge or payment you made to an account on December 29, 1999 showing up on your January 10, 2000 statement.

You know, until I began reading articles about the issue, I never thought about that fact that medical and hospital emergency systems operate off computerized dating. Some of which has not yet been updated to the Year 2000 issue. The possibility that folks could be in an emergency situation at 11:59 p.m. on December 31, 1999 and having lifesaving equipment cut out within the minute digitally screaming "error!, error!, error!" as our round baler monitor does, came home to roost recently.

A payment gliche that occurred within recent days to area dairy producers really underlined the reality of the issue. Milk is paid under an archaic, screwy system that dates back decades and which makes little sense, except that is the way it is. Milk for different uses is paid at different price levels and those levels fluctuate with supply and demand. But they lag way behind—price if often still dropping when milk starts to be short. Dairymen have learned to live with the strange payment system, like it or not.

Market and price gyrations recently created and upside-down position for milk prices—milk for drinking temporarily valued at way less than milk used for manufacturing purposes—and created a negative deduction from many farmers' settlement milk checks, especially here in the middle Atlantic area Producers were pleased with their advance, first-of-the-month milk check, paid at one pricing level, only to find large deductions due from their second, settlement, monthly milk check to balance the lesser combined value of milk resulting when the price of all classes of milk was factored together.

Even worse, computers in some cases were unable to read the negative number and turned it into a positive, resulting in producers initially being paid twice the amount that should have been deducted in the first place Meaning that a lot of money that was already mentally—if not physically—earmarked to pay off feed, fertilizer, vets, etc., had to or will have to be taken off a succeeding check.

This was probably the first time ever that this price contortion of such large proportions occurred to us dairymen around here. Thus, some payroll systems weren't programmed to recognize it, Result: a bunch of very angry, upset, frustrated, even panicked; farm families. It's hard to have to pay back amounts ranging from a few hundred to, in some cases, several thousand, dollars, simply because of computer systems' gliches

If this can happen to us dairy producers on such a relatively small scale, what does the general population have to look forward to on January 1, 2000?

Believe me, I have a whole new respect for the Y2K issue

Taste Of History

MUMFORD, N.Y. — Nineteenth-century cuisine had as many layers as a white Portugal onion. It was practical, and it was flavorful. It was rich, and it was healthful. It relied heavily on foods grown and raised locally, but it liberally borrowed specialties and techniques from many European cultures.

Genesee Country Village & Museum will highlight all those aspects during "A Taste of History Theme Week," August 25 through 30. The week will highlight the museum's working kitchens and allow visitors to experience, up close and in person, the cooking equipment, methods and foods used in the 1800s.

"Visitors will learn about 19th-century measurements such as 'butter the size of a hen's egg' and 'brine strong enough to float an egg," says Marguerite Sharp, lead interpreter of foodways.

The featured dishes will highlight not only the eras and economic conditions of the houses that hold the museum's working kitchens, but will also focus on foods available in August and September, particularly the seasonal crops. All the kitchens will use fruits and vegetables from the museum's heirloom gardens.

The museum will also spotlight popular 19th-century desserts including grunts and cobblers.

Genesee Country Village & Museum maintains the third-largest collection of historic buildings in the nation. Each of the 57 19th-century buildings has been moved to the site, restored to its original condition and furnished with period antiques. Costumed villagers and craftspeople interpret 1800s Genesee River Valley life for visitors. The museum also includes a Gallery of Sporting Art, with one of the largest collections of sporting and wildlife art in the country, and the 175-acre Genesee Country Nature Center, with plant, animal and geology exhibits and five miles of hiking trails through woodlands, wetlands and meadows.

Genesee Country Village & Museum is located in Mumford, N.Y., 20 miles southwest of Rochester and 45 miles east of Buffalo, near New York State Thruway exits 47 (LeRoy) and 46 (Rochester). Museum admission is $11 for adults, $9.50 for seniors or students with ID, $6.50 for children 4 to 16, and free for children 3 and under Parking is free. The museum's summer hours, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m Tuesday through Sunday and holidays, are in effect through Labor Day.

people are needed to fill the following positions:

- Experienced sewers to guide, supervise, and sew when necessary.
- Sewing machine operators for zipper installation and pullover construction.
- Serger machine operators for pullover construction.
- Runners to transport items from station to station.
- Quality inspectors to check quality of the pullover.
- Embroidery machine operators to embroider Hearts and Hands labels.
- Pressers to press seams and hems.
- Pinners to pin in zippers and hems.

During each two-hour session, the assembly-line process will require 11 machine operators, three pressers, two floor persons, five inspectors, one foreperson, one mechanic, and two rippers.

"We did a dry run," Julie said of the process designed to make it as easy as possible for volunteers. In addition, participants will receive light refreshments to fortify helping hands.

The pullovers will be given to the Salvation Army. They will coordinate efforts with other agencies to distribute the fleece pullovers to those in need.

In addition to helping others, Julie said the event will help spread the fun of sewing in a friendly atmosphere. It's a great time for people of all ages to work together.

A home economics class from a local high school will bus students who wish to participate in the project.

Donations are needed to help pay for the purchased fabric.

Tomatoes

It's tomato time! Judging from several recent phone calls and my own observation of supplies, I'd say tomato harvest time is here.

There are a number of ways you can capture today's tomatoes for future reference.

You can freeze tomatoes simply by cooking them alone or with seasoning such as onions, celery, peppers and herbs. I always blanch the tomatoes and remove the skins or cook the tomatoes and them put them through a food mill because I find the skins to be unpleasant. You can cook up a batch of sauce or spaghetti sauce and freeze in freezer weight zipper bags or plastic boxes. In a pinch, you could even freeze tomatoes without cooking them first, only to thaw and cook them later in the fall. I'd only recommend this if you are going on vacation and can't deal with the tomatoes now or some similar scenario.

Tomatoes that are frozen whole will become limp and watery when thawed because the cell wall of the tomatoes are very tender and when the liquid in the tomato freezes it forms sharp-edged crystals that puncture the cell walls. When the tomato thaws, the liquids leak out.

You can also preserve tomato products in jars by using a water bath canner or pressure canner. Tomatoes these days have less acid than they used to and so to prevent the possibility of dangerous food spoilage in the vacuum of the sealed jar, it is recommended that you acidulate the tomatoes with either citric acid or bottled lemon juice. For the same reason, the recommended length of processing time in the canner has been lengthened over what was common practice years ago. If you are interested in canning tomatoes products you can get a set of recommendations and recipes from the extension office.

A word about quality. If you are buying tomatoes to can and your source sells "canning tomatoes" be very fussy about the condition of the tomatoes. Do not can tomatoes that have deep cracks or spoiled bruises. These will introduce high levels of bacteria which can cause spoilage. If "canning quality" means irregular shapes and sizes, that's ok. Otherwise, sort them very carefully and wash the tomatoes with lots of running clean water to remove spoilage bacteria.

One bothersome feature of making tomato juices and sauces in the separation of the pulp in the juice Tomatoes contain pectin that is destroyed when the tomatoes are cut and exposed to the air, as when you are cutting them up ahead of time. It is not a good idea to cut up a pot full of tomatoes and then bring to a boil. The better way is to crush a few tomatoes and bring them to a boil, then cut quartered or sliced tomatoes into the boiling juice. The tomatoes can then be mashed or put through a good mill or separator. This technique will make a huge difference in your sauce or juice.

Tomatoes can be dehydrated in slices or in halves using a food dehydrator. Forget about sun drying here in central Pennsylvania! We have humidity that is too high and insufficient dependable sunshine to do the job. If you live in Arizona it would work, but not here.

If you are interested in dehydrating food, I recommend that you purchase a dehydrator that has a thermostat and a fan to move the air in the appliance Folks who have tried drying wet food like peaches or apricots or tomatoes without a fan-driven heat often the food gets moldy before it dries A dehydrator will work faster in your air conditioned house than in another place that has humidity of 80 percent or higher. Italian Roma-type tomatoes will give better results in the dehydrator because they have significantly more solids than regular slicing tomatoes

Huge numbers of folks are making salsa with their tomatoes. They are making it to freeze and can, to use themselves and to give as gifts, and to sell at bazaars. Because salsa has lots of onion and peppers added, the acidity of the mixture is reduced. This means the recipe must have sufficient added vinegar or bottled lemon juice if it is to be safely canned It must be processed in a water bath canner to be safe It is not safe to improvise a salsa recipe what will be kept in a sealed jar at room temperature (If you are freezing the salsa or eating it fresh, it is ok to improvise.) We have a booklet with safe salsa recipes you may can. Send a SASE to me at 2120 Cornwall Rd, Lebanon, PA 17042 for your copy.

Finally, you can make tomato preserves with yellow or red tomatoes You can make it the old-fashioned, long-boil method or you can use commercial pectin such as Certo or SureJell. The recipes are not in the box insert because they are not very popular You can get odd recipes by calling the company Last week I called the 800 telephone number on the Certo box to get a recipe for tomato preserves. They call it tomato relish I wrote it down and have a copy I would share with you Good Luck with your tomato preservation efforts!

Make It With Tomatoes

One medium tomato has only 24 calories, is high in potassium, and contains 14 percent of the USRDA of vitamin A and 37 percent of the USRDA of vitamin C.

Purchasing Tips:

- Tomatoes are available from August to October.
- Choose tomatoes that are firm and plump. Avoid those that are soft, bruised, cracked or otherwise damaged.
- Ripe tomatoes are completely red or reddish-orange (depending on variety) and give slightly to gentle palm pressure.
- Mature-green tomatoes have quality similar to vine-ripened, if given proper conditions to ripen.
- Select unpackaged tomatoes or those packaged in perforated wraps. This allows for good circulation, which is needed to ripen tomatoes.
- One pound has three medium or four small tomatoes, which will yield 1½ cups pulp.

Storage Tips:

- Ripe tomatoes may be stored at room temperature for a couple of days or in the refrigerator for up to one week. Flavor and nutrient quality will decline if held longer.
- Unripe-mature tomatoes should be ripened at room temperature in a loosely closed paper bag or ripening bowl for a couple of days. Do not ripen in direct sunlight for they will not taste flavorful even if the skin is red. Tomatoes need good ventilation and high humidity to ripen properly.
- Green tomoatoes will not ripen further and usually spoil first. They should be cooked or pickled as soon as possible.

Preparation tips:

- Fresh tomatoes can be served uncooked in salads or stewed, baked, broiled or microwaved.
- When peeling ripe tomatoes drip in boiling water for 30 to 60 seconds, then dip into cold water. Skins will slide off.
- When freezing tomatoes, the skins should be removed because they become tough.
- When canning, only use firm and ripe tomatoes. Overripe, soft, or tomatoes picked after frost or disease-killed plants have less acid and may be unsafe to can.

Ideas With Tomatoes:

- Add tomato slices to grilled cheese sandwiches for new taste appeal.
- Bake or boil a tomato with grated onion and shredded cheddar cheese.
- Stuff fresh, whole tomatoes with egg, chicken, or seafood salad, then top with low-fat cottage cheese or yogurt.
- Saute cherry tomatoes in butter with garlic.
- Place tomato halves, cut side up, in a greased baking dish. Top with mixture of cooked fresh spinach, minced onion, seasoning, and bread crumbs, then bake about 15 minutes or until thoroughly heated.
- Stew tomatoes by placing diced tomatoes in a saucepan without water. Season with salt, pepper, and a pinch of sugar; add diced onion and or green pepper. Simmer in a tightly covered pot on low heat for about 10 to 15 minutes, stirring occasionally.

Tomato Salad Ideas:

- Marinate fresh diced tomatoes and onions with oil, a little vinegar, and oregano; salt and pepper to taste. Serve very cold.
- Marinate fresh diced tomatoes and sliced zucchini, cucumber and onion, with Italian salad dressing of an oil and vinegar mixture.
- Mix tomato slices, green pepper rings, chopped celery and onions with freshly ground black pepper, a dash of cayenne pepper, ground cumin, and olive oil.
- Mix tomato slices with crumbled feta cheese, chopped walnuts, fresh chives. Sprinkle with olive oil.
- Spinkle sliced tomatoes with parmesan cheese, olive oil, and minced fresh basil.
- Marinate 2 pints cherry tomatoes for 2 hours or overnight. Use ¾ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon sugar, ¼ cup fresh lemon juice, ¾ cup vegetable oil, 1 clove garlic (minced), ½ teaspoon dried thyme and basil leaves, and 1 tablespoon chopped parsley.

TOMATO SALSA

4 cups peeled, cored, chopped tomatoes
2 cups seeded, chopped long green chiles
½ cup seeded, chopped jalapeno peppers
¾ cups chopped onion
4 cloves garlic, finely chopped
2 cups vinegar
1 teaspoon ground cumin
1 tablespoon oregano leaves
1 tablespoons fresh cilantro
1½ teaspoons salt

Combine all ingredients in a large saucepan and bring the mixture to a boil, stirring frequently. Reduce heat and simmer 20 minutes, stirring occasionally. Ladle hot into pint jars, leaving ½ -inch headspace. Adjust lids and process in boiling water canner for 15 minutes. Yield 4 pints.

Tomatoes add flavor and color to many Italian dishes. Italian Polenta Cheese Casserole demonstrates the wonderful combination of cheese and tomatoes.

SPICED TOMATO BROTH WITH ORZO

Orzo is a tiny, riced-shaped pasta especially suitable for soups. You can use white rice instead of orzo if you prefer just increase the final cooking time from 10 to 20 minutes.

1 cup finely chopped red onion
1 tablespoon oil
2 cloves garlic, minced
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon ground allspice
1 tablespoon honey
3 cups tomatoes, peeled, seeded, and finely chopped
3 cups canned vegetable broth
Juice and grated zest of two oranges
½ cup orzo pasta
Yogurt or sour cream to garnish (optional)

In a large pot over medium heat, saute onion in oil until golden, about 7 minutes. Add garlic, cinnamon, and allspice and cook, stirring, for 2 minutes more.

Add honey, tomatoes, broth, juice, and zest. Bring to a boil, reduce heat and simmer for 15 minutes. Add orzo and simmer for 10 minutes more. Garnish with sour cream, if desired. Makes 6 servings.

Along with my reign I will continue to work on the family farm, at Big Country radio station, and also attend SUN Tech for cosmetology."

Did you know your skeleton is made up of 206 bones? Since they are mostly made up of calcium they need a daily dose of this mineral. Your bones need calcium to keep them strong and healthy, also to keep you away from that awful bone crippling disease osteoporosis. Calcium is primarily found in milk and dairy foods. Other greens have small amounts: it would take three cups of fresh broccoli to get the same calcium in one glass of milk! So don't deprive your body of what it wants and needs to function properly. Treat yourself to your favorite bowl of ice cream, and salute your neighbor farmer. Then try a new recipe!

York 4-H Selects Hog Champions

JOYCE BUPP
York CO. Correspondent

YORK (York Co,) – A 240-pound purebred Yorkshire hog snagged grand champion honors at the York county 4-H livestock show for Fawn Grove exhibitor Susan Richardson. The annual roundup show and sale was held August 11 at the York 4-H Center.

For 16-year-old Susan, the banner day came after just three years of exhibiting market hogs, along with the dairy and lamb projects she raises for 4-H and FFA projects. At the sale, which followed, the market-ready pig commanded a $2.50 per pound price from buyer Martin Heaps, Fawn Grove. Susan plans to utilize her market hog income toward either or both her college fund or the purchase of next year's show pigs.

"We don't have facilities for breeding hogs, so we have to buy them," she says to the Charles and Ruth Richardson family dairying operation near Fawn Grove. This season's market hog purchases came from the breeding operation of Wilson Brothers, New Freedom. A littermate to the grand champion claimed the lightweight champion honors for younger sister Barbara Richardson, 14.

Reserve champion honors went to Lane Innerst, Red Lion, with a 240-pound crossbred. The pink-ribboned winner was second in the sale and sold for $2.80 per pound to the Early American Steam Engine Society.

Champion pair exhibitor was Russell Wilson, New Freedom, with a matched set of 240- and 245-pound market hogs Buyer of the pair was 93rd legislative district candidate Ron Miller, Jacobus, at $1.50 per pound for both hogs.

Heather Jasienski exhibited the reserve champion pair, a set of 202 and 200 pound pits. Both sold to Hatfield Quality meats, Hatfield, for a 95-cent bid.

Champion heavyweight, at 275 pounds, was exhibited by Jessica Innerst, Red Lion. Buyer was Windsong Farm Kennels, Red Lion, for $1.20 per pound.

Adam Shue, Jr, exhibited the 235-pound champion mediumweight pig, which sold for $1 55 per pound to Wildasin Dairy, Hanover. Shue also took the reserve mediumweight honor with a 221-pound entry which sold for $1.45 to Ken Snyder Masonry, Dover.

Barbara Richardson's lightweight champion, at 200 pounds, sold on a $1.30 per pound bid to York Building Products, York. The Fawn Grove exhibitor had the reserve weight winner as well, with Kessler's Inc., Lemoyne, the winning bidder at $1.40 per pound for the 200-pound pig.

Bobbi Myers exhibited the reserve heavyweight champion, which sold to a trio of buyers who donated it back for resale to benefit the 4-H Center's animal exhibition facility. Paying $3 per pound for the 270-pound pig were Lease's Auto Body and Paint Specialists, East Berlin; McClarin Plastics, Hanover; and A/C Service and Repair, Inc. York.

Hatfield Quality Meats repurchased the pig on the second round of bidding, with a $1.50 per pound bid which generated $405 toward the show facility. The reserve heavyweight winner was one of the three pigs sold by Bobbi Myers which were donated back for resale for the exhibition center.

In the showmanship competition, honors were split between Adam Shue, named the champion showman, and Lindsay Jones, selected reserve champion showman.

Zucchini Custard Pudding

1 medium zucchini grated
1 tablespoon salt
4 eggs
½ cup milk
¾ cup fine dry bread crumbs
½ teaspoon oregano
3 tablespoons parmesan cheese
2 tablespoons margarine, melted

Sprinkle grated zucchini with salt and drain. Before using, squeez out as much moisture as possible. Beat eggs, add milk, bread crumbs, seasoning, cheese, and melted margarine. Fold in squash. Pour into greased 1-quart overproof dish. Bake at 350 degrees for 40 minutes. Serves 4.

Zucchini In Batter

1½ pounds zucchini, smallest available
2 cups water
2 cups all-purpose flour
Oil for frying
Salt to taste

Wash and dry zucchini. Trim ends. Cut zucchini into sticks 2-inches long and ½ -inch thick. Put water in a medium bowl.

Gradually sift flour into water, beating constantly. Batter should have the consistency of mayonnaise. If too thin, add a little more flour; if too thick, add more water.

Batter can be prepared a few hours ahead. Pour oil 2 inches deep in a saucepan or deep fryer. Heat oil to 375 degrees or until a 1-inch cube of bread turns golden brown almost immediately. Dip zucchini sticks into batter. Using a slotted spoon, lower zucchini sticks a few at a time into hot oil. When golden on all sides, remove from oil with slotted spoon. Drain on paper towels. Arrange drained zucchini on a platter and season with salt. Serve hot. Makes 6-8 servings.

1 small onion, chopped
1 clove garlic, minced
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
4 tomatoes, peeled, chopped
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons minced parsley

Cut zucchini into ¼ -inch slices. In slow cooking pot, combine zucchini with green pepper, onion, garlic, salt, and pepper. Top with chopped tomatoes, then butter. Cover and cook on high for about 2 hours or until tender. Sprinkle with parsley Makes 6 to 7 servings.

Zucchini Me Yaurti Greek Dish

3 tablespoons olive oil
2 pounds sliced zucchini
½ cup chopped onion
1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 tablespoons chopped fresh dill weed
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon garlic powder
⅔ cup plain yogurt

Saute onions and zucchini in olive oil over medium heat 5 minutes. Cover and cook 2-3 more minutes or until tender

Combine last 5 ingredients. Pour over squash; heat. Serve immediately.

FRESH TOMATO PIE

Prepare pie crust (double recipe). Roll out thin and place on cookie sheet or pizza pan, brush with melted butter generously.

Bake until half done in 400 degree oven approximately 15 minutes in preheated oven.

Slice tomatoes ¼ -inch thick and salt lightly, place on paper towel and let set until juice is drawn from tomatoes, about one hour.

Place tomatoes on crust so crust is completely covered, next put sliced Swiss cheese on top of tomatoes. Season with garlic, oregano, and pepper. Finish baking at 400 degrees until bottom crust is browned and cheese is melted.

Note: Best served fresh, hot or reheat over low heat in covered skillet.

We cover tomatoes completely with cheese.

My daughter picked up this recipe from a friend a few years past. We enjoy this as soon as we get our own red, ripe tomatoes.

Why are hot peppers so hot?
Hot peppers ARE hot They can make your mouth burn, your nose run and your eyes tear up But don't blame the peppers! The heat comes from the chemicals inside them
The most common kind of heat-generating chemical in hot peppers is called capsaicin (say cap-SAY-a-sin) Pure capsaicin is a white powder, and it's so hot it can blister your skin! Regular green peppers have only a tiny, tiny amount of capsaicin in them, so they're not really hot — they just have a little "bite" to them Jalapeno peppers have a lot more — about 2,500 times more — so they're a LOT hotter
But do you know what's the hottest pepper around? It's the habanero pepper, which has about 3,000 times as much capsaicin as the hottest jalapeno pepper Now that's hot!
Some pain researchers think that if you eat enough hot peppers for a long enough time (years and years), your nerve endings might lose some of their feeling That sounds bad, but it means that you wouldn't feel as much pain as you used to That's good news for people who have arthritis or other painful conditions Already, capsaicin is used in some arthritis creams — it produces a burning sensation, then relief
But be careful around hot peppers If they have enough capsaicin in them, you can burn your skin just by handling them Be sure to wear plastic gloves and keep your hands away from your face You'll be thankful you did!

Ida's Notebook

by

Ida Risser

August is the last chance for many families to take a vacation this year. Many people head for the seashore while others go to the mountains.

This year our son and his children from Georgia visited us for several days. It seems that the children are anxious to play on the farm and even ran there before breakfast. Later on they got a bicycle to cover the one-half mile distance.

On the farm they have cousins to play with and lots of animals. The younger girl is a lover of cats and so she carried a small one around a lot It was a job to keep enough ice cubes on hand for all of their drinks. You would think that I did not feed them as the boy could be seen eating honey bread anytime of the day or night. As he is now 12 years old, I gave him a choice of one of my braided rugs He chose a larger one made out of an old blue wool coat with red wool added for contrast

We've been eating watermelons and cantaloupes quite often The garden on the farm has sandy soil and is fine for melons. During the Agnes flood in 1972, it was covered with six feet of water and when it receded there were mounds of sand everywhere. At one time a nearby field was used to grow melons for the neighborhood

This year I raised a watermelon with a bright yellow skin and red flesh. There are also dark green round ones and oblong green striped ones It is nice to have enough to share them with another family. In the early 1900s when my father-in-law worked his way to the west coast, he had a job camping in a melon field to protect it from marauders at night. We have a picture of him and his tent

New Sweetner To Hit Grocery Shelves

TUNKHANNOCK (Lycoming Co.) — The Food and Drug Administration recently approved sucralose, a new sweetener that is 600 times sweeter than sucrose (table sugar). Even though the sweetener is made from sucrose, it doesn't provide any calories and won't increase a person's blood sugar The process in which sucrose is converted to sucralose results in a sweetener that is not absorbed into the blood stream

The white crystalline powder will be available in tabletop jackets very soon and will be found as an ingredient in prepared foods within a few months Some of these prepared foods include baked goods, non-alcoholic beverages, chewing gum, frostings, gelatins, fruits and water ices, puddings and fillings, processed fruits and fruit juices

Johnson & Johnson, the manufacturer of sucralose, has been working on approval of this high-intensity sweetener for over 11 years More than 110 studies in humans and animals, including studies with vulnerable groups like pregnant women and children, have found no adverse reactions. While you see warning labels on many of the other sweeteners you won't see any on sucralose, since no adverse effects have been found the healthy stance of wheat showed no damage from the former tornado. But the wheat camoflaged danger that inflicted heavy losses to equipment.

"I had spent $20,000 to fix the combine after it was damaged from the tornado. I just got it back and before we even had one-fourth of the bin filled, I had three flat tires and had to constantly stop because of all the debris we were running into," Mertz said.

Frustrated by the impossibility of harvesting at that rate of speed, a neighbor, whose religion doesn't allow rubber tires, offered his steel-wheeled equipment to finish the wheat harvesting.

After the wheat was cut, a group of neighbors walked the fields again and picked up six or seven more trailer loads of debris.

"And it isn't cleared yet. Every time we walk the fields, we keep finding stuff," Larry said.

The inside of the Mertz home is no longer a haven to relax. For the last three months, they have endured the constant peppering shots of a nail gun, the whine of saws, and hammering. Workman are everywhere.

And danger is rampant for the Mertz's grandchildren who live on the property and are constantly underfoot. The small children can't seem to get in the habit of wearing shoes and have sustained numerous cuts and imbedded metal on their bare feet. Curious, the children like to watch the workmen, but the adults worry about injuries to children who sometimes get in the way.

Despite the family's best efforts, splinters of glass continue to be found in upholstery, beds, floors, and furnishings. Floors are muddied from ongoing traffic.

Recently, the Mertz family recounted how they had been on the lookout for a tornado since they had heard of a tornado watch reported on the weather channel in May. Larry and Carol had even summoned family members who live in a modular home on the farm to seek shelter in the basement. After the weather channel lifted the warning, the family assumed danger was over and returned to life as usual.

An hour later, the lights went out and the wind started blowing. The tornado struck before the couple could pull the basement door shut.

"By the time we got to the basement, it was all over," Carol said.

They had heard the shattering glass and the roof sucked off the house. When they went outside and saw the devastation, one of the sons asked, "Is it worth rebuilding?"

That first night, neighbors helped to stretch a tarp across the attic to keep the rain from damaging the rest of the house.

Electrical lines were installed from the house to power up the computer to transmit data back and forth to the milking parlor. Fortunately the milking parlor computer ran the milker after it was hooked up to the generator.

By 2:30 a.m., the generator was running and feeding was begun. The family started milking at the usual time at 3:30 a.m.

Generators were used for milking for three days.

"I didn't sleep for three nights," Larry recalled, remembering the stress and pressure of caring for the herd and coping with cleanup.

"The cows held up better than I thought," Larry said.

Although the cows initially panicked and one split from trying to escape a cement block wall, amazingly milk production remained steady. However, the herd has had five abortions since the tornado—a side effect that Larry attributes to the tornado.

They also seem a bit nervous from all the noise of rebuilding.

Some of the herd is registered, but Mertz and his sons are more interested in seeing how much milk goes into the tank rather than pedigrees. Members of DHIA, the herd has a rolling herd average of about 22,000 pounds.

The Mertz's estimate they have $300,000 damage from the tornado. They are unsure how much will be covered by insurance.

"We did things to save the insurance company money. The barn peak isn't as high so we lost stor-

(Turn to Page B15)

"Some days we just want to give up. But we can't let it like this. This is what we do," Larry said of farming. Larry and Carol, her mother Marion Fitzgerald, sons Mike and Steve, and grandchildren Chad, 10, and Evan, 6, and Allen, 14, find that milking 130 cows and farming 385 acres are not easy tasks while cleaning up tornado damage. "We are stressed to the max. We're working day and night with no end in sight," Larry said.

The Mertz family is grateful to the many volunteers who helped rebuild and cleanup after tornado damage.

Community Pulls Together During Tornado Cleanup

The losses victims suffer from tornados is phenomental, and not something anyone would choose. Although many neighbors escape the ravages of tornados, they too experience losses. And what makes this significant is that their losses are voluntary. "Many people went without a paycheck the week after the tornado because they were here everyday cleaning up," Judy Kurtz said of the community help they received after a tornado destroyed their home and farm property.

Numerous neighbors provided meals everyday for two weeks during cleanup efforts in Berks County. In order to cook and serve sometimes as many as 300 persons during cleanup, homemakers were unable to clean their own homes and keep up with yardwork. In addition to volunteering time, they spent their own money to provide food for the crews.

Life hasn't been normal for much of the community.

"These times really help you get to know your neighbors better," said Beth Kurtz, sister-in-law and neighbor to Luke Kurtz, the farm that was destroyed by the tornado on May 31.

Neighbors provided meals for cleanup crews during the many weeks of tornado clean up and rebuilding.

Zucchini Quiche

3 small sliced zucchini
½ cup grated parmesan cheese
9 eggs
½ teaspoon dried oregano
5 tablespoons melted butter
¼ cup chopped onion
¼ teaspoon salt
1½ cup milk
½ cup Bisquick

Cook zucchini and onions in half of the butter with oregano and salt until tender, about 5 minutes.

In blender or food processor, mix eggs, milk, parmesan, Bisquick, salt, and remaining butter. Pour into a buttered 13-inch dish or pie plate. Spread zucchini over top.

Bake in preheated 375 degree oven 30-40 minutes.

Here's a recipe from B. Light, Lebanon.

Peel zucchini, cut lengthwise, scoop out seeds and slice to resemble apple slices. Cook in water and lemon juice for 10 minutes over medium heat. Meanwhile combine sugar, cream of tartar, salt, flour, nutmeg, and cinnamon.

Stir butter into the zucchini then add the sugar combination, pour into pie shell.

Work the butter, sugar, and flour fine crumbs. Sprinkle over zucchini mixture and bake for 45 minutes.

Tastes like apple pie.

Here is one from Grace Reed, Chambersburg.

1 teaspoon chopped onion
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper

Sugar-Free Canning

TUNKHANNOCK (Lycoming Co) — You may successfully can fruits in water or unsweetened fruit juice, instead of the traditional sugar syrup.

Sugar is not essential for preventing spoilage in canned fruits except for jams and jellies Here are some pointers on processing sugar-free foods

Although sugar generally helps fruit keep its shape, color, and flavor, there is no danger in canning fruit without sugar This can be done by using water, the fruit's own juice, or purchased fruit juice

Use only high-quality, firm, ripe fruit Avoid overripe fruit as it will soften too much during preparation and processing As you peel or cut the fruit, place it in a gallon of water to which 1 teaspoon of ascorbic acid powder or 6 crushed 500 mg vitamin C has been added Commercial products are also available These help keep your fruit fresh and prevent darkening

Canning with plain water instead of a syrup saves calories Depending on whether a thin, medium, or thick syrup is used, plain water can reduce the calorie content of canned fruit by 200 or 375 calories per pint

For a sweeter taste and extra nutrients, you can use fruit juice instead of water You can buy fruit juices or even prepare your own from fresh fruit To do this, bring ripe, crushed fruit to a simmer over low heat Strain the hot juice through a clean jelly bag or cheesecloth and use it in place of some or all of the water that you add to the canning jar

It's better not to add artificial sweeteners before processing as they may change the flavor If you want to sweeten your fruit with artificial sweetener, add it when you serve it

After you've added liquid to the canning jars, you're ready to process the fruit Use the boiling water bath processing method Processing times are the same for fruit canned with or without sweeteners.

Remember, home canning without sweeteners is safe for all fruits except jams and jellies. To can fruits without sugar, use water, the fruit's own juice, or purchased juice. Use firm, ripe fruit and use normal processing methods to can these foods

Tornado Clean Up Overwhelming

age area. A two-story building was replaced with a one story. We did all the ripping down and building by ourselves with wonderful people who helped. We have been insured by the same company for 50 years so we are hoping they will treat us fairly," Mertz said.

Although media reports claim that federal funds were sent to the area for tornado victims, the Mertz family knows of no property owners who have received any money.

"We started out with nothing 35 years ago, but I don't think we could do it again," Larry said of the farm he and Carol lived on since their marriage in 1963.

The handsome stone house and property had been in disarray when the Mertz family first obtained it.

"The house was in bad shape, termites were in the beams. We put in steel beams, replaced windows, ceilings, walls, and rewired the house. We remodeled a bank barn and milkhouse.

"Dairy farmers can do anything," Carol said of her husband's ability to transform the place.

Although not raised on a farm, Carol learned fast. She and Larry's mother milked 130 cows, until her mom passed away about three years ago.

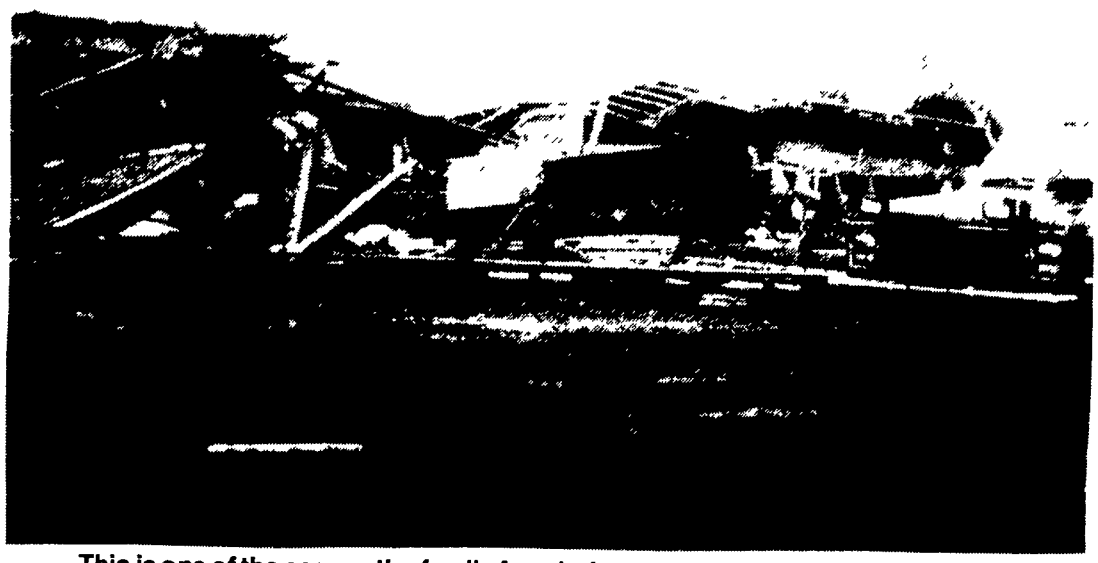
Later, the family erected a free-stall barn and milking parlor.

Most of the crops raised on 385 acres are used for their own stock, but some is sold.

The Mertz's son Mike lives on the original family farm, which adjoins the one Carol and Larry live on. Michael, his wife Melanie and three boys work on the farm. Another son Steven, his wife Stacy and children live in a modular home erected on the property and also work on the farm. Daughter Michelle lives at home and works for Bell Atlantic.

Carol said, "We don't know what normal is anymore, but we don't want to complain. We have a lot to be thankful for. Everyone is alive and together and we really appreciate that."

Some days the Mertz's just want to give up. "But we can't let it like this. We love it here. This is what I do," Mertz said of his attachment to the farm, which has been in the family for several generations.



This is one of the scenes the family faced when they walked out of the basement on that fateful day, May 31.

Imagine having a team where each person knows their strengths and can do that part of the job to the best of their ability. Anyone can do this and the energy that transfers from work to home," Taylor said

Taylor emphasizes that people clutter their lives with so many things they don't like, they never really do the things they like most or are best at doing. When people know what they do best, they really shine. This workshop is meant to help you discover your spark, where you really want to put time and commitment to achieve excellence, and then develop a plan and use it.

Taylor shares the story of Ben Franklin and how when he discovered electricity he was so engrossed in his work he forgot to eat and sleep for three days. The outcome of his intense work changed the world. Discovering your brilliance is a process that flows with change and change is a major part of the business world today. "You have to constantly be open to change and discovering your brilliance will help you cope with changes more successfully," says Taylor.

Taylor holds an Ed.D. in adult education from Temple University, a masters in education in counseling from Millersville and has further training in management and communications counseling. She is affiliated with the Central Pennsylvania Chapter of the American Society of Training and Development, the International Coaching Federation and the American Counseling Association.

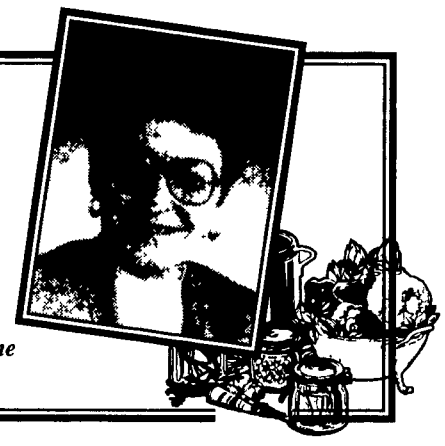
Consuming Thoughts

by

Fay Strickler

Penn State Extension Home Economist For Berks Co.



Frequently family living agents get calls from consumers who are concerned about pantry pests in cereals, grains, and pasta products. Their most frequent questions are "Where do they come from?" and "How can I control them and prevent future infestations?"

Let's take a look at the path that products take and see where infestation might occur.

Modern food processing and packaging methods virtually preclude the possibility of insect infestation at the plant level. When merchandise is shipped from a plant, it may go through several channels of distribution before it reaches its final destination. Sometimes, goods may be exposed to infestation in transit or storage and the result will not be known until it is used by the consumer.

Infestation can also occur right in the home. Sometimes insects infesting other foods in the cupboards come from unexpected sources. Food products which are left undisturbed on shelves for five to eight weeks are particularly susceptible to pests, especially in late summer or early fall.

There are many types of insects that attack foods. They go by names such as Sawtoothed and Merchant Grain beetles, Flour beetles, Drugstore and Cigarette beetles, Granary weevils and Rice weevils, Larder beetles, Foreign Grain beetles, Indianmeal moths and Mediterranean Flour moths.

Some in the larva or adult stage, can bore their way into a tightly sealed package Entrance holes are normally small and difficult to see Products packaged in glass containers are less likely to become infested The insects can follow a path up through the screw-on guide under the jar lid and make their way to the top. If this happens, the insect may be discovered between the seal and the cap, or possibly in the product itself.

To control pantry pest, follow these steps:

1. Locate the source of the infestation. Check seldom-used packages of cereal, flour, raisins and spices. Check dry dog or cat food and bird seed.

2. Wrap heavily infested food in a heavy plastic bag and immediately dispose of it away from all other food.

3. Heat or freeze susceptible foods after you have had them for 60 days, even if they do not appear infested. Cold treat packaged foods such as cake mixes and spices in their original containers. Expose them to 0°F. or lower temperatures for three days, or seven days for larger packages. Heat-treat dried fruits by placing in a cheesecloth bag and dipping in boiling water for about six seconds.

4. Store insect-free foods in tightly closed glass, metal or heavy plastic containers.

5. Periodically clean pantry and cupboard shelves particularly cracks, crevices and spaces under shelves. A vacuum cleaner works best.

6. The use of insecticides has no effect on insects within food packages.

To prevent future infestations.

- Avoid long storage periods by purchasing susceptible or seldom used foods in small quantities.
- At time of purchase, examine foods such as cornmeal, coarse cereals and macaroni to be sure they are insect-free.
- Store susceptible foods in insect-proof containers.
- Heat or cold-treat dried foods that you store for more than 60 days.
- Keep storage areas clean
- Finally, remember to check dry dog or cat food and bird seed often for insects

Scan Scams

Checkout scanning errors may be costing shoppers more than 1 billion dollars a year. Researchers in California found that close to 1 out of 10 scans was wrong. Three out of four mistakes favored the Supermarket.

How can you beat the Supermarket maze, and still get your groceries and save money? Follow the suggestions given below.

- Make a shopping list and stick to it. But also remember to take advantage of sale items in the store.
- Compare unit prices to make sure you are getting a good deal on sale items and larger packaged items.
- Shop every other week, and limit your trips to the grocery store.
- Don't shop when you are hungry or when the store is crowded.
- Purchase store brands.
- Items on sale at the end of the aisles, may not be a good buy. Compare with similar items in the store.
- Pay attention when your order is being rung up, especially to items on sale.

Harvest Show Cultivates Seeds Of Knowledge

PHILADELPHIA — More than 700 gardeners from throughout the greater Philadelphia region grew their own vegetables and flowers, created their floral designs, and are ready to reap their summer rewards at the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society's 1998 Philadelphia Harvest Show.

The show, titled "Did You Know? ... Harvest Trivia" will be held Saturday, Sept. 19 and Sunday, Sept. 20 at the Horticulture Center in Fairmount Park, Philadelphia.

A multimedia display and exhibit welcomes visitors to the show. Join the pumpkins, squash and gourds of the "Curcurbit" family as they enjoy their favorite game show, "Horticultural Pursuit." Guests can test their horticultural knowledge with the curcurbits and learn hundreds of fun gardening facts, tips and techniques, as well as information about the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society and its programs. While viewing the Philadelphia Harvest Show, visitors can follow the intriguing "Q and A" trail and answer horticultural questions.

From city plots to backyard gardens, gardeners share in the seasonal festival by entering 1,000 varieties of fruits, vegetables and flowers, floral arrangements, preserved products, and baked goods. Exhibitors compete for awards in the 350 artistic and horticultural categories including "You bet your life," a challenge class in which contestants are all given the same fresh plant materials and accessories and using their pruners, creativity and ingenuity create a tremendous flower arrangement; and "Little Things Mean a Lot," a miniature design no bigger than 5 inches. Exhibitors will also enter massive marigolds, stupendous seedheads, colossal cabbages, gargantuan garlic, and titanic tomatoes in the popular "Harvest Heroes" class.

In the youth division, children also show off their gardening and artistic talents. Youngsters preschool through 12th grade will create "character masks" using dried plant materials that represent their favorite game character or "pumpkin pals," and three dimensional "crafty creatures" made from seeds, pods and other dried flowers and materials. Children also enter their homegrown vegetables, fruits, and plants.

The Philadelphia Harvest Show is a fun-filled weekend for the entire family Visitors can wander through the show's multitude of entries and educational exhibits, enjoy a host of special events for children and adults, and take a stroll to the Japanese House and Gardens (with a special Harvest Show admittance price of only $1)

Direct Marketing Conference To Be Held In Buffalo

BUFFALO, N.Y. — "Marketing for all Seasons" is the theme for the 1999 New York State Farmers' Direct Marketing Conference here at the Adam's Mark Hotel, from Feb. 1-3.

The annual conference features a bus tour, workshops, and two full days of informational sessions.

Monday, Feb. 1 features the annual conference bus tour. The 1999 tour promises stops at exciting roadside stands, farmers' markets, and other areas of interest to farm marketers. And for those remaining behind, there are several hands-on workshops to choose from. You can learn to make evergreen wreaths, dried flower arrangements, gift baskets. Surfing the web, advertising, and food preparation demonstrations round out the workshops.

Dr. Jennifer Wilkins, senior extension associate with the Department of Nutritional Sciences at Cornell University, will give the keynote address. She will speak on building local food systems in the Northeast. She'll follow up her address with a session on the Northeast Regional Food Guide: how to help your customer eat right and support local agriculture. Her talks promise to be inspirational as well as educational.

Following Wilkins will be two full days of educational seminars. The topics cover every subject direct farm marketers need to market successfully for all seasons. Conference attendees just entering the direct farm marketing arena will find fresh new ideas on such topics as how to price their products, marketing techniques, and advertising. More experienced marketers will also have plenty of interesting sessions to attend — everything from developing your own processed product to adding value with herbs and fresh cut flowers, as well as some of the rules and regulations regarding petting zoos.

Several other organizations will be conducting their meeetings during this conference. The NYS Berry Growers Association will be hosting a full day of educational seminars on the opening day of the conference, Monday, Feb. 1. The NYS Christmas Tree Growers will be sponsoring several sessions throughout the conference on direct marketing trees, wreaths, and holiday greens. The newest association to form, The Farmers' Market Federation of New York, will be conducting meetings all day on Wednesday, Feb. 3.

These sessions are open to market managers, farmers, and anyone interested in farmers markets. You may be interested to learn what this group is all about. And finally, the MidAtlantic Christmas Tree Growers Alliance will be holding their educational meetings with their membership on Wednesday, Feb. 3, and then hold over for another full day at the hotel to finish up.

An important event at each year's conference is the trade show. The Marketing For All Seasons Conference will once again sponsor a large trade show. You'll be able to meet and talk with more than 40 vendors all related to direct marketing of farm products. Sofco, as the corporate sponsor of the NYS Farmers' Direct Marketing Association, will feature a wide array of products. Many other vendors, from bakery goods to seed companies, gift items, packaging, displays, signage, and countless others will all be spotlighting their wares at this conference trade show.

Rounding out the conference is entertainment. The first evening of the conference, Monday, Feb. 1, is the Taste of Buffalo Mixer. Conference goers will be treated to a wide array of food including authentic Buffalo style chicken wings, a steamship roast of beef, and turkey. It's also a perfect opportunity for conference attendees to mix and meet each other and exchange ideas and make new friends. Then on Tuesday is the annual NYSFDMA ice cream social and auction.

In the Degelman tradition of quality rock removal equipment, here is the RR1500 rock rake, another example of Degelman's continuing commitment to excellence.

The RR1500 rock rake includes a unique auto-fold system which provides safe, easy transport no wider than most tractors (8 feet in transport position) with full use of the 14 foot width in the working position And with hydraulic angling, it can take full advantage of the 10 to 30 degree angling range.

Degelman Rock Rakes are excellent machines for grooming fairways and conditioning soil for the construction of golf courses. It leaves a beautiful final finish preparing the course for seeding. They are also used for reclaiming gravel on gravel roads. And the heavy duty construction and quality workmanship means that it is built to last.

Degelman

The SIGNATURE 6000 may be the only rock picker you'll ever need This is the most rugged rock picker on the market Some of the SIGNATURE 6000 features include.

Solid Shaft Grill Tines with Replaceable Grill Tips - This modern grill is easier to maintain, has longer life giving you less down time The unique grill provides five feet of clean sifting and virtually jamless performance

Grated Hopper Bottom - We use spring steel straps in the hopper, engineered to bounce back in shape.

Hydraulic Drive - The most popular drive on rock pickers is hydraulic which is standard on the 6000. We have incorporated a relief valve to take away the shock when disengaging the drive.

Reel Assembly - The three paddle reel has a large diameter, hard sufaced teeth and heavy duty paddles.

Flotation Tires - The 16.5L x 16 1 flotation tires are standard equipment and are a must to reduce soil compaction

Swing Pole - Easy to maneuver in both working or transport position.

Herbert Hoover Farney says, "I didn't think they could mix it."

Steve, Dale and Herbert Hoover Farney
Silvery Falls Farms - Lowville NY

Mr Farney is talking about mixing 11.5% long stem dry hay by ration weight in the Knight Reel Auggie 3450, which he and his sons decided to purchase in September of 1994

Herbert was born the day Herbert Hoover was elected president

The Farneys previously owned a three-auger Oswalt stationary unit They state that the "old mixer tended to ball material up, especially in wetter forages, while the Reel Auggie 3450 'fluffs' the ration"

The Farney's herd average is up about 1,000 lbs , and they have a higher protein test as well They milk 160 Holsteins, and feed a total of 260 head. They like the low power requirement — the 390 cubic foot machine is powered by a John Deere 2030 tractor

3000 Reel Auggie TMR Mixers
Now available in seven sizes
with capacities from 147 to 600 cubic feet

Soil Organic Contents High — So Are Yields On Chester County Corn Grower's Farm

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

REINHOLDS (Lancaster Co.) — Crop specialists have known for years that impressive corn yields are possible by rotating to corn from a sod or legume.

But one master corn grower looks deeper and possibly struck gold — in a way — by paying attention to improving soil organic content.

When other fields endured yet another droughty season in 1997, Reinholds area corn grower Jeff Mitchell took a look at one plot — plot number 2 in his records — on previous soybean ground in West Whiteland Township in Chester County which he manages. The plot's soil is Hagerstown loam with a pH of 6.6.

That's not so impressive. But what does stand out is the soil format according to tests conducted recently by a private company.

That plot's soil tested high for organic matter (4.7 percent) with an 11.8 CEC (or 'cation exchange capacity,' the ability of the soil to hold nutrients for the plant's use). The plot was located near a PennDOT wetlands restoration project. Having an estimated nitrogen release (ENR) of 127 pounds per acre also helps. (ENR refers to the amount of nitrogen expected to be released from the available organic matter in the soil.)

The soil test showed high to very high levels of phosphorous and potassium with a medium level amount of calcium and other nutrients. Mitchell conducts no nitrogen

Jeff Mitchell was recently honored as a first-place champion in the Five-Acre Corn Club Contest at the Pennsylvania Corn and Soybean Conference. Jeff farms in Reinholds with his wife Susie and son Matt, 3.

ROOM FOR IMPROVEMENT

Who says there are no growth areas for customer service programs?

According to statistics from the Chicago-based International Customer Service Association here are 10 industries or organizations that could take a closer look at customer service techniques:

- 5,517,200 cases of soft drinks produced in the next 12 months will be flat.
- 2,488,200 books will be shipped with the wrong cover in the next 12 months.
- 2,000,000 documents will be lost by the IRS this year.
- 268,500 defective tires will be shipped this year.
- 114,500 mismatched pairs of shoes will be shipped this year.
- 22,000 checks will be deducted from the wrong bank accounts in the next 60 minutes.
- 3,506 copies of tomorrow's Wall Street Journal will be missing one of its three sections.
- 1,314 phone calls are misplaced by telecommunications.

Maximum Yield Goals Require Vigilance

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

GRANTVILLE (Dauphin Co.) — Think of this: 328 bushels per acre of corn.

To some growers this could be simply an after supper dream as they gaze upon the entry form for the multi-acre corn club contest.

But at Rutgers University, this dream already came true — years ago.

In 1991, using what can only be described as "vigilance" and by blending various hybrids, Dr. Joseph Heckman, Rutgers University extension specialist, achieved just that as part of an ongoing maximum yield research program at the university.

The goals of the project identify yield factors and use methodologies to overcome limitations of the soil, the seed and the crops themselves.

Heckman spoke to about 200 producers and agri-industry representatives recently at the Pennsylvania Corn and Soybean conference at the Holiday Inn in Grantville.

Of course the project didn't concern itself with the economic or practical aspects of growing a top crop Heckman noted. The project simply looked for ways to increase yield.

Franklin County Dairymen Understand Needs Of Grazing Cows

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

CHAMBERSBURG (Franklin Co.) — Franklin County grazier Doug Martin understands cows.

He knows they enjoy open air housing. They like fresh small paddocks. Cows enjoy a 'salad bar' mix of grasses including orchardgrass, rye grass, manna grass and clovers.

Cows like smooth, even lanes to walk to pasture. They like to have plenty of water to dip their tongues into on a hot summer day.

Cows enjoy keeping cool, too. In fact, producers see the effects of any kind of heat stress in the milk check.

Martin has taken the wishes of his 300-head Jersey milking herd on his Chambersburg farm to heart.

He has to because there is literally not enough room for the all registered herd in a sense.

The freestall housing at Pleasant Valley Jerseys amounts to enough for about 200 cows. Martin has 300 cows to care for — so not all of them can be in the barn at the same time.

This member of the Franklin County Graziers believes that 'open air' housing provides enough room to ensure the cows get enough to eat, are comfortable, can be readily milked and

Nazareth Farmer Learns That Drying Can Lead To Great Bales

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

NAZARETH (Northampton Co.) — As Robert Bieber slowly removes the twine from a 40-pound bale of fresh alfalfa hay he separates a few slices. Out fall some of the leaves. Look at that hay, he says. No mold or wet spots. Perfect all the way through.

Bieber points to a pallet ready to ship to one of the horse farms that regularly buy his hay.

'This hay they can feed immediately,' he says.

Wenger Feeds Acquires Hog Company

ELIZABETHTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — In an effort to focus on its core feed business, White Oak Mills Inc. recently signed an agreement to divest its pork production sector. This will enable White Oak Mills to provide quality livestock feeds and value-added services to independent dairy, swine, and other livestock producers.

Wenger Feeds Inc., with headquarters in Rheems, has signed a letter of intent with White Oak Mills' owners, Mark and John Wagner, to acquire White Oak Mills' commercial sow, farrow-to-finish pork production operation.

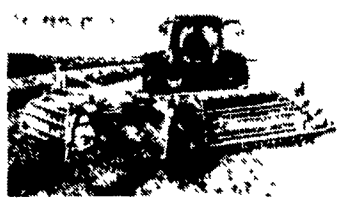
"This serves as a natural, strategic move for our company," said White Oak Mills' President Mark Wagner. "White Oak Mills' main focus is to maximize its feed manufacturing operation with increased dairy, independent swine, and other livestock feed business to expand new market positions and further our company's strategic goals."

In addition, this renewed focus will allow White Oak Mills to explore new agribusiness opportunities.

Wenger Feeds will assume responsibility for certain existing leased or contracted Pennsylvania sow, nursery, and finish operations. Additional terms of the agreement have not been disclosed.

Vermeer Launches New Upgraded TwinRake Line

PELLA, Iowa — Significant design enhancements to improve strength, field performance, and serviceability are incorporated into the new improved R-23A and R-24A TwinRakes from Vermeer.



Significant design enhancements to improve strength, field performance, and serviceability are incorporated into the new improved R-23A and R-24A TwinRakes from Vermeer.

Both TwinRake models perform well in virtually any hay harvesting system. Raking widths are adjustable (18 to 24 feet on the R-24A; 18 to 23 feet on the R23A). Windrow widths are hydraulically adjustable (independent of ground speed) to handle different crops or conditions.

Vermeer's new top-of-the-line R24A TwinRake, built to handle the most demanding field conditions, features an improved, heavier 5"x7" rectangular steel main frame with continuous round cross-section toolbar. The new Command II Monitor allows the operator to adjust the windrow widths and switch from transport to field-ready without leaving the tractor seat. New grease-free windrow width adjustment slides keep service and maintenance time to a minimum.

Transport width has been reduced to just 98 inches. Going from field to transport takes just seconds. The process is all hydraulically controlled from the tractor seat The rear assembly lifts to start the folding sequence. A 2-stage hydraulic system slides the telescoping stabilizer/linkage arms along the tongue, drawing the front-fold baskets together. The baskets then are locked into position on a center post and lifted for transport on 11Lx15 tires. Tooth height is preset with easy-to-adjust cylinder stops and ratchet jacks (on the rear of rake). Minimum hydraulic requirement is 6 gpm at 2,250 psi.

Large caster-type wheels (27x9.50x15, 4-ply ribbed) help cushion the ride, smooth out turns and maintain the rake's setting as it negotiates changing contours and terrain.

Dekalb Genetics, Forage Genetics Join Forces

DEKALB, Ill. — Dekalb Genetics and Forage Genetics announced that they have reached an agreement to collaborate in the research and development of Roundup Ready® alfalfa.

The development of Dekalb Brand Roundup Ready® alfalfa will allow growers to apply Roundup Ultra™ herbicide to their alfalfa crop to control labeled weeds and grasses.

The two companies will be working closely to develop, evaluate, and release new alfalfa varieties with the Roundup Ready trait.

Recently, Forage Genetics and Monsanto Company announced they had signed a letter of intent to collaborate in the research and development of important agronomic traits that add value to alfalfa, with Monsanto contributing gene technology and Forage Genetics contributing the alfalfa transformation.

Under the agreement between Dekalb and Forage Genetics, Dekalb will conduct product evaluation and marketplace assessment. Dekalb will also use its distribution network to support the development of the new products.

Both companies are optimistic that new Roundup Ready alfalfa will be released sometime shortly after the year 2000. "We are really excited to be on the forefront of bringing Roundup Ready technology to the alfalfa crop," said Jim Rich, northern area brand marketing manager for Dekalb Genetics. "By having the opportunity to use Roundup on their alfalfa to control weeds and grasses, alfalfa growers will be able to produce higher yields of higher quality forage. That means more income per acre for our customers."

Forage Genetics, a wholly owned subsidiary of Research Seeds, Inc. of St. Joseph, Missouri is an industry leader in the research, development and marketing of value-added alfalfa technologies. Research Seeds is recognized as a worldwide leader in the development, production, and marketing of proprietary forage and turf seed.

Carrier's Low Profile Allows Use Of 3-Point Hitch Spear

HONEY BROOK (Chester Co.) — Stoltzfus Manufacturing, has announced the addition of a round bale carrier to their Well Built™ line of farm equipment.

Designed to handle big loads of low or high moisture round bales, the carrier's low profile allows the use of a three-point hitch bale spear to load and unload, reducing the amount of equipment needed. Constructed of heavy ¼ -inch steel tubing, vertical and horizontal bracing, and 2⅛ -inch back spindles, the Well Built™ Round Bale Carrier is built to last.

"Bale cradles" tilt in for load stabilization and are capable of double stacking over the main beam when loading with a front end loader. The overall design works to reduce the effects of unbalanced loading.

All of the three models — 6-, 8-, and 10-bale — are available with the popular Well Built™ dolly assembly featuring a wide bushing and pin to maintain a straight track in road transport, and an extendable tongue for easier hookup. Other options include bale spacing of 4 feet, 5 feet, and 6 feet, and a two-wheel trailer with ball-type or gooseneck hitch.

Designed to handle big loads of low or high moisture round bales, the carrier's low profile allows the use of a three-point hitch bale spear to load and unload, reducing the amount of equipment needed.

Ventrac Ground-Gripping Tractor Is The Ultimate In Groundskeeping

ORRVILLE, Ohio — Quick-release front attachments allow the operator a full range of interchangeable implements on the Ventrac 4000 ground gripping, AWD, articulated tractor.

An optional category 1 rear three-point hitch accommodates a wide range of rear mounted attachments. The hydrostatic conotrol forward/reverse lever is mounted beside the seat for convenience and operator comfort.

Three engine options — 25 hp Kohler, 23 hp Mitsubishi water-cooled diesel, or a 24 hp Kubota water-cooled gasoline engine — provide the horsepower to tackle tough jobs.

Agway Profits Increase In Fiscal 1998

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Agway, Inc. reported increased profits for fiscal 1998, which ended on June 30. The farmer-owned cooperative reported nete earnings of $41.8 million on sales of $1.56 billion. Last year, Agway reported net earnings of $10.7 million on sales of $1.67 billion.

Agway's fiscal 1998 net earnings included a one-time benefit of $29 million, reflecting a change to a preferred method of accounting for the cooperative's pension investments. This benefit coupled with improved operating earnings resulted in the strong performance for the year.

"Overall, we are satisfied with the continuing progress that our fiscal 1998 financial results reflect, especially in light of the difficulties that many dairy farmers faced in early 1998 and the impact of the unusually warm winter on our Energy business," said Donald P. Cardarelli, Agway president and chief executive officer. "We see the opportunity ahead for making much more progress as we remain focused on two related objectives: growing and improving the profitability of our businesses, and improving the profitability our our farmer members."

Agway's Agricultural Products business reported strong volume growth in feed, fertilizer, corn seed, and soybean seed in fiscal 1998, which helped offset declines from falling fertilizer and grain prices during the year.

Sales and revenues increased in the company's food, leasing, and insurance businesses, Agway's food business reported strong growth in fresh produce distribution throughout the eastern U.S. The food business also reported strong growth, both domestically and internationally, in its recently expanded sunflower business. Telmark, Agway's lease financing subsidiary, crossed another significant growth milestone as its lease portfolio topped $500 million during the year. Agway Insurance Company also grew overall revenues for the year and increased the number of farmowner policyholders.

Agway's Energy business had strong earnings for the year despite a winter that was one of the warmest on record. Sharp declines in fuel prices and lower petroleum and propane unit volume sales due to the warm winter were primarily responsible for Agway's overall sales decline compared to last year.

Sales by Agway's retail business showed a moderate decline for the year as significant product mix and repositioning continued in order to place focus on the store's nursery, lawn, garden, and pet businesses.

During fiscal 1998, Agway and Telmark paid more than $38 million in dividends and interest to its investors, principally Agway farmer-members, employees, and retirees.

Cardarelli also announced that Agway will hold its 1998 annual meeting on Nov. 12, at the Hotel at Exit 37 (formerly the Four Points Hotel) in Syracuse, N.Y Five incumbent directors, nominated earlier in the year, are expected to be officially elected to three-year terms on the Agway board of directors at the Syracuse meeting. The incumbent directors include Keith H. Carlisle, Greenwood, Del.; D. Gilbert Couser, Pine Bush, N.Y.; Andrew J. Gilbert, Potsdam, N.Y.; Thomas E. Smith, Greenville, Pa.; and William W. Young, Clifton Springs, N.Y.
